Sept. 12 Lillooet Vote Date 'Money Talks' By-Election Leaves Month for Campaign

The Lillooet by-election, forced by Liberal J. Gordon Gibson's dramatic resignation from the B.C. Legislature following his "money talks" charges on the government's forest management policies has been set for Sept. 12.

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black announced the polling date this morning, giving B.C.'s politicians the kick-off for a month of campaigning in what is certain to be one of the hardest fought by-election tests in recent B.C. history.

Chief issue in the by-election will be government handling of forest resources, particularly forest management licences, which Mr. Gibson has attacked repeatedly as a multi-million dollar giveaway.

At the time of his resignation, five months ago today on March 10, Mr. Gibson announced he was resigning to force a test of public opinion on forest management.

The three major political parties in B.C., Social Credit, Liberal, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation — are expected to throw their full weight into the by-election battle.

The Socreds see the Lillooet contest as an opportunity for their party to avenge the Victoria by-election in November, 1953, when Liberal George Gregory nosed out former Socred finance minister Einar Gunderson.

Social Crediters named their candidate Saturday. He is Don Robinson, an engineer on the government-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

CCF'ers were the first in the field. They named a Lillooet school teacher, Jack H. Thomas, to carry the party banner.

LIBERALS TO MEET
Liberals will hold a nominating convention "within the next few days," and Mr. Gibson is expected to be uncontested as party candidate.

Outcome of the September 12 vote will be decided on the straight "X" ballot. The complicated alternative ballot system has been scrapped.

Nominations for the by-election will close September 2. Advance polls will be open September 8, 9 and 10.

Politicians already are trading punches, warming up for the campaign. Premier Bennett has labelled Mr. Gibson a "millionaire-playboy-yachtsman" and scored candidate "two-bit Robinson, a worker of Lillooet."

He said he labelled the men in this fashion because "Gordon Gibson said something about running against a two-bit Social Credit candidate."

Liberal Leader Arthur Laing today dispatched a telegram to the premier, asking for an apology.

Mr. Gibson said the premier had "tried to become a millionaire and failed. I made it," he said.

He said his only reference to the Socred's Lillooet candidate had been some months ago, when it was rumored Einar Gunderson would contest the seat.

"I said at that time 'bring on Gunderson,' because I wanted to run against the best candidate they had, and not a second-rater."

5,500 VOTERS
There are about 5,500 registered voters in Lillooet riding.

In the 1953 general election, Mr. Gibson won out only after the third count of ballots. On first count, the standings were: Frank Olafson, Social Credit, 1,065; Gordon Dowling, CCF, 1,372; Gordon Gibson, Liberal, 1,103 and Herbert Ashby, Progressive-Conservative, 452.

On second count, with Ashby's votes distributed, the standings were Olafson, 1,138; Dowling, 1,420, and Gibson, 1,325.

On the final count, Gibson beat out the CCF candidate with 1,830 votes, compared with Dowling's 1,694.

Quinn, Rivette Will Both Try Strait Tonight

Quinn at 7:30;
Rivette at 8

The starting gun will boom this evening for two of the five challengers of Juan de Fuca who plan cross-strait attempts this week.

At 7:30 p.m., Bob Quinn, 23, Toronto, will start from Clover Point.

At 8 p.m., Douglas Rivette, 44, Vancouver, will go from Gonzales Point.

Both will use local fishermen as navigators. Johnny Veness for Quinn, Alf Webb for Rivette.

Early Thursday was first set as departure time for Quinn, but after a 10-mile swim from Macaulay Point to Race Rocks Tuesday night, Quinn and coach Steve Mellors decided on the earlier time.

Quinn was in the water again for another training dip at 6:30 this morning, and Mellors said his swimmer would make a third, brief plunge this afternoon to keep in trim.

COACH CONFIDENT
The coach said after watching Quinn Tuesday and noting his condition after the 10 miles in extremely cold water, he was sure of the swimmer's ability to make the long haul to Ediz Hook.

"My mind is at ease now," he said.

Two more tries are scheduled for Friday, Janice White's second at 8:30 p.m. and Bill Muir's third at 9 p.m. Miss White plans to leave from Gonzales Point, but Muir's handlers have not disclosed course or starting point.

Finally Victorian Bob Bowden, also 23, is making preparations for either a Saturday or Sunday evening start, his second, probably from Gonzales.

'Runaway' Reactor Dangerous as A-Bomb

Industrial Disaster Possible Warns Scientist Edward Teller

GENEVA (UP)—The California scientist who unlocked the secret of the hydrogen bomb warned the world today of a new danger—the dread "runaway" nuclear reactor that could be as dangerous as the atom bomb itself.

The warning was delivered in a paper from Edward Teller of the University of California, known as the "father of the hydrogen bomb," and was echoed in papers by British and Soviet scientists at the atom-for-peace conference here.

He warned that runaway nuclear furnaces may force the evacuation of entire cities, poison entire watersheds and turn stretches of land into forbidden areas for years. It could be a split second disaster but an industrial disaster unknown before to the world.

The scientists said nuclear fission must be made as safe as gas or electricity for the era of atomic power is near at hand. They told of an unceasing search for devices to make nuclear fission safe in the laboratories of two continents.

The paper said that "with all the inherent safeguards that can be put into a reactor, there is still no fool-proof system... there are unfortunately certain dangerous characteristics... (and) this public hazard has been one of our main concerns."

EDWARD TELLER

Danger to Public Emphasized

"Perhaps," the Teller-McCullough-Wills paper said, "it is important to emphasize the degree of public hazard that might follow a reactor accident."

"Assuming that good luck prevails and no one is killed, it may nevertheless be necessary to evacuate a large city, to abandon a major watershed and very probably it would be necessary to make the reactor site itself a forbidden area for years to come."

Britain's W. G. Marley and T. M. Frey of the Harwell Laboratories said they did not think the safety problem was "insuperable." But they urged that atomic plants be built away from heavily populated areas in such a way that only limited quantities of radioactive activity would be released in event of an accident.

McCullough said: "A feature of radioactive poisons is that the lethal level is not detectable by human senses. Furthermore, very serious injury may not be detected for years after exposure."

"An outstanding characteristic of nuclear reactors is their potential ability to achieve extremely high power levels in a short time. If adequate control of the machine is lost, a typical nuclear runaway accident may start and be over in times appreciably less than a second."

Martin Firm On Hospital 'Hold-Line'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Health Minister Eric Martin reiterated his stand today on the hold-the-line order to British Columbia's 81 general hospitals whose budgets rely on B.C. hospital insurance service for income.

Mr. Martin said in an interview that any hospital that is overstaffed "will incur a deficit and there's nothing we can do about it."

Just back from a month-long trip to 14 hospitals in central and northern B.C., the health minister said he found only one unit in any "serious difficulty."

He said the hospital at Vernon was in financial straits but he declined to elaborate.

Victoria Girls' Drill Team will make an appearance on the field at half time.

The game will not be televised.

Government Strike Vote Asked By Vancouver Milk Workers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Workers in major dairies here Tuesday night rejected a conciliation board report and applied for a government-supervised strike vote.

A strike would be the first in the history of Vancouver's milk industry.

Workers, members of Local 464, Milk Drivers and Dairy Employees Union (AFL-TLC), rejected the conciliation board report by a vote of 443 to 9. They favored application for a strike vote by a margin of 399 to 11.

Rookie Policemen Work Undercover, Nab 28 Traffickers

(CP and BUP Dispatches)
VANCOUVER—Police said today they believe the main source of supply for Canada's major illegal narcotics market was cut off Tuesday with the arrest of 28 suspected drug traffickers. Seven others still are sought.

Undercover work by two Vancouver city police force "rookies" was credited with smashing the drug ring, reported to be headed by Montrealers who moved into the Vancouver narcotics market after a period of gang warfare with rival syndicates.

Vancouver constables today were ordered to keep a close watch on drug stores as a protection against desperate drug addicts anxious to get narcotics.

There are 2,000 known addicts in Vancouver. Canada's total addict population is estimated at 3,200.

Fifteen of the 25 men and three women rounded up in Tuesday's joint raids by RCMP and Vancouver police, appeared in police court today. Bail totaling $140,000 was set and Aug. 17 and 18 set for their trials.

Seven of those appearing today were charged with conspiracy to traffic in drugs. They included five men already in Oakalla prison waiting trial on charges they attempted to murder a drug addict, Thomas Kinna, by beating him with an iron bar.

Thirteen cars, each carrying an RCMP and city police officer, combed the city for eight hours Tuesday to conduct the operation.

Bob Deventer, 27, who worked for the Dutch underground during the Second World War, and Ken Scherling, 25-year-old university graduate, were the key figures in the sweep. The rookie undercover men joined the Vancouver force five months ago and soon moved into the underworld to gather evidence against peddlars.

Deventer and Scherling waited in the RCMP office here Tuesday and identified each of the suspects brought in.

Four city detectives shadowed the rookies in their dangerous undercover assignment and in turn the detectives were followed at all times by other policemen.

Acting chief constable Alan H. Rossiter said today he will "personally commend" the two rookie constables.

Major Blow at Distributors
"Without a question," Rossiter added, "this is a major blow at drug distribution. Naturally, it is considered likely that some people will consider attempting to fill the source of supply, but we are ready for them."

Det. Sgt. Archie Plummer, city police force liaison officer with the RCMP, and Sgt. Harold Price of the RCMP directed the raids.

Police chief Walter Mulligan who is on leave of absence pending the outcome of the Tupper royal commission hearing into charges of laxity and corruption in his department, was identified by Vancouver police spokesmen as the man who masterminded the undercover operations.

For nearly a year police here have spoken of underworld battles to control the drug racket.

The "gang war" was touched off last September by the murder of Danny Brent.

In November, William Semerick was shot down by two assailants whom he refused to name. Eddie Sherban and Joe Marcoux were acquitted of attempted murder charges and Semerick now is serving a 10-year term for drug trafficking.

In February there was an attempt on the life of Jacob Leonard, named in court as the leader of a drug faction. Leonard survived after his car was blown up by an explosive wired to the ignition.

Tuesday's raids were the biggest here since 1953 when undercover RCMP constable Gerald Howe laid charges of selling narcotics against 31 persons.

In 1949, the RCMP broke the Carmen Chiovitti and Dan Gasperini gang with 10 arrests in Toronto and Vancouver.

Probably the most celebrated narcotics conspiracy case was against the Mallock brothers and William Carter in 1950.

Executive of the local had recommended rejection of the award and had called for application for a strike ballot.

Union secretary John Brown said the rejection and automatic call for a strike vote will force nine major milk distributors to renew negotiations.

In Victoria, drivers and inside dairy workers last week voted to strike if a settlement was not reached in Vancouver. A conciliation award to Victoria union members granted

CITY POLICE ALERTED FOR DRUG ADDICTS

City and RCMP forces here have been alerted to be on the lookout for drug addicts from Vancouver crossing to the Island in attempts to buy drugs.

City police chief John Blackstock said today that extra precautions will be taken.

Watch on passengers arriving on boats from the mainland and activity at smaller wharves is expected to be stepped up.

RCMP said they have been alerted.

FOLKESTONE, Eng. (AP) — A sudden change in weather conditions today caused a postponement in the mass English channel swim from France to England.

Swimmers from 14 countries were scheduled to plunge into the water off Cape Gris Nez tonight, but the race officials said that the weather forecast was unfavorable and that there would be a danger of loss of life if the swim went on.

Vancouver Cuts Police Activity To Fit Budget

Civic Finance Group Rejects Plea for $25,000 Increase

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council's finance committee has refused a request by the Vancouver police commission to increase the police department budget by $25,000.

The action was taken at a special meeting in which commissioner R. A. Sargent outlined cuts in police protection necessitated by the present budget.

He listed the cuts as:

1. Increasing the number of car beats to 30 from 23.
2. Reducing by six the 36 "A risk" beats which rated 24-hour protection, for a saving of 27 men.
3. Cutting by four the number of "B risk" beats which rated 16-hour protection.
4. Reducing the detective division on the midnight shift to a point where only two officers will be on duty on occasion. The traffic division will be unchanged.

Ald. J. W. Cornett, finance committee chairman, expressed the general views of committee members.

"I won't be a party to any increases of $25,000—it won't be fair to the other departments. The police department will have to do with the money it has been allocated this year . . ."

Ald. Bill Orr said he had figures showing that the per capita cost for police protection in Vancouver was higher than any city in Canada. He quoted comparative costs as: Vancouver $10, Winnipeg $8.17 and Victoria $8.43.

Parents Plan Meeting on Road Danger

Fear For Safety Of School Children

Worried about the safety of school children who have to cross the Helmcken Road-Trans-Canada Highway intersection, members of Strawberry Vale community club plan to hold a meeting next Tuesday to request improvements to the highway outlet.

Mrs. Martha Ellen was killed at the intersection last week.

Ron Burtenshaw, community club president, said all residents of Strawberry Vale and View Royal have been invited to attend the meeting and to express their views on the subject.

"The intersection will receive heavy use by children going to and from schools," he said. "School opening is only three weeks away, and parents are fearful for the safety of their children."

Mr. Burtenshaw said there is a crosswalk at the intersection, but he added it was not considered an adequate safeguard for pedestrians who must cross the highway.

Mr. Burtenshaw said John D. Tisdale, Saanich MLA; Reeve Joseph Casey and Alex Gardner, president of the View Royal PTA, have been invited to attend the meeting to discuss the problem.

Boy Survives 150-Ft. Fall Into Canyon

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — Michael Hay, nine, was in fair condition Tuesday night after falling down a 150-foot cliff into Capilano Canyon in North Vancouver.

The boy, taken to Vancouver General Hospital after a check-up in hospital here, suffered no determined injuries in the fall down the sheer cliff.

Police said the boy fell into a pool halfway down the canyon. Firemen used ropes and a stretcher to hoist the lad to safety.

Search Unavailing For City Pilot

WINNIPEG (CP) — A nine-man RCAF ground search party today was expected to complete its scouring of the Manitowagan area of eastern Manitoba for a jet trainer, missing since July 25.

The search party, under Flt. Lt. W. A. Dragan of Vancouver, covered three strips Monday and Tuesday, each 400 yards wide and 2½ miles long. Two sweeps were scheduled to be made today.

The "fringe" area of the possible crash site will be searched today, with the party returning to Lac du Bonnet, Man., tonight.

Boats dragging mine detectors also were unsuccessful in the search along Lake Winnipeg for the jet and its pilot, PO H. F. Walsh, 18, of Victoria.

H-Power for Britain 'Within Generation'

Giant Strides Being Made to Harness Atomic Energy for Peaceful Uses

GENEVA (Reuters)—A top British atomic scientist said today his country is working to harness the power of the hydrogen bomb for peaceful purposes.

No one, however, can forecast now when the search for peaceful thermonuclear power will be successful, said Sir John Cockcroft, director of Britain's atomic energy establishment at Harwell.

He dodged other questions on the stage Britain has reached in its research along these lines, saying only: "When you work you make progress."

But another British scientist said a reasonable period for successfully developing hydrogen power was "a generation." It was revealed several months ago that Britain is working on a hydrogen bomb. Today's announcement indicated a new British move to seize the lead in peaceful atomic power development.

Cockcroft made his statement at a press conference here on the third day of the United Nations-sponsored "Atoms-for-Peace" conference of delegates from 72 countries.

Reporters threw a barrage of questions about Britain's progress in atomic programs at Cockcroft. Sir Edwin Plowden, chairman of the British Atomic Energy Committee, and other British atomic scientists.

Cockcroft said no one could possibly make any forecast at present as to when this power might be harnessed for peaceful purposes.

"We are working on this in Britain, but we are not in a position to make forecasts," he added.

Sir George Thomson, master of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, and representative of Britain's Royal Society, told correspondents: "H-fuel for peaceful purposes is bound to come in the end."

"The ingenuity of engineers is so great I am convinced that any proposition which you put before them and which does not conflict directly with physical processes will be solved by them within a reasonable period of time," he declared.

Asked what he considered to be a reasonable period, Sir George Thomson answered: "A generation."

Dr. John Dunworth, head of the reactor physics group at Harwell, said the big obstacle to harnessing H-power is the difficulty of combining the high temperatures involved with "ordinary materials we have in the world."

American and other foreign observers at the conference here have been struck by the giant strides British scientists and industrialists have made toward channeling atomic power into industry and other peaceful purposes.

Electricity At Threshold Of New Era

GENEVA (CP)—Atomic energy power plants may produce 10 to 15 per cent of Canada's total electric energy requirements by 1980.

The statement was made here today in a Canadian paper presented at the international conference on peaceful uses of atomic energy. The paper was prepared by Dr. W. B. Lewis, chief scientist at the Chalk River, Ont., atomic energy plant, and Dr. John Davis, an economic advisor to Trade Minister Howe, who is in charge of Canada's atomic research.

Dr. Lewis, vice-president of research and development for Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., and Dr. Davis, associate director of the trade department's economics branch, also said they expected sufficient capital will be available in Canada for a multi-million dollar atomic power program.

The paper said that between 1960 and 1970, an increasing number of thermal plants under construction in Canada will be of the nuclear variety.

EMERGING POWER SOURCE
It said a ratio of one to one in the construction of new nuclear and other thermal plants at that period "would mark the beginning of an entirely new era—that of the emergence of atomic power as a major, if not the major, source of electricity in Canada."

The paper said that hydro power still will be the main source of electric energy in Canada by 1980. However, the amount of power developed by thermal means—coal, oil, gas and atomic energy—will have risen from negligible proportions of a few years ago to at least 30 per cent of installed generating capacity.

Diem Rejects Election Plan

SAIGON, Indochina (UP)—Premier Ngo Dinh Diem today ruled out all-Viet Namese elections until Communist North Viet Nam guarantees the freedom of vote and human rights.

Diem implicitly rejected a joint French-British-American recommendation to abide by the 1954 armistice agreement and start making joint electoral preparations with the Communist north. His attitude threatened to touch off a new crisis in southeast Asia.

In an official statement, the South Viet Namese government turned down as a propaganda move a North Viet Namese note that both sides begin arranging for next year's elections requested by the truce pact.

The Diem government said it had not yet taken part in the July 1954 Geneva agreement and therefore felt bound in "no way whatsoever" by the truce pact's clause calling for electoral arrangements now and elections next year.

The Geneva conference ended the long conflict in the former French colony by dividing it along the 17th parallel into a free south and Communist north. It called for elections in 1956 to determine the future of the two countries.

The government statement said it was determined to achieve the aim of its policy—"unification of the country in peace and liberty"—through putting ahead the best interests of the nation.

The Old Enemy

THE WESTERN WORLD, ITS mind recently concentrated on political problems of war and peace, has been compelled overnight to confront once more the old, economic problem of inflation.

Britain finds real inflation under way, as indicated by the usual symptom of rising prices.

In the United States prices have been remarkably steady for several years but the national Government is worried by a threatened monetary inflation which could soon reflect itself in the price level.

In Canada the Government was represented a few days ago as untroubled by this threat but has suddenly raised the Bank of Canada's discount rate as a warning against the expansion of credit.

These changes in the economic climate of the chief English-speaking states may surprise many Canadians who have not yet realized the massive dimensions of the current boom. Almost everywhere in this country we are investing huge amounts of manpower and materials in new capital undertakings, governmental and private. At the same time the public is demanding a larger supply of consumable goods and the wages needed to buy them.

Generally speaking, there are sufficient supplies of manpower, materials and consumable goods to satisfy the current demand. Hence the cost of living has recently shown no significant change. But if the boom goes on at its present rate we could encounter the familiar difficulty now gripping Britain and worrying our American friends. We could have a larger appetite than goods to satisfy it.

This prospect, if not immediate, is disturbing enough to switch the Bank of Canada from a mildly inflationary to a mildly deflationary direction. When the Bank raises by a few decimal points the interest rate which it charges for loans to private banks, this act of itself has no tangible effect because the private banks are not borrowing from the central bank.

Nevertheless, the change in the central bank's thinking is a danger signal. It will be instantly observed by the private bankers, as it has already been observed on the stock markets. Lenders have been warned to be more careful in extending credits and thus in effect creating more money.

A warning of this sort may be sufficient when it is issued before a boom has turned into an inflation. We certainly do not require in Canada the sharp fiscal remedies already applied in Britain, or perhaps even the softer remedies applied in the United States, through the Federal Reserve system.

Besides, our price level will generally follow the American level up or down, however, we may try to control it simply because we buy and sell so massively in the American market.

Alone we cannot cause or cure a North American inflation or deflation and we shall always feel the results of both. Within pretty narrow limits a Canadian fiscal policy must necessarily be kept parallel to that of the United States, whose business largely dominates the free world economy.

It is reassuring to know just the same that the Canadian Government is alive to the danger of inflation, as it was alive to the opposite danger of deflation a year ago.

Actually our economy is behaving as Mr. Harris predicted in his spring budget, has recovered from the 1954 dip and should yield us more goods this year than ever before.

The fact that the Government feels obliged to temper the boom by gentle banking policies is the best proof of our prosperity. And the fact that these measures have been taken in good time should be the best assurance that the boom will not be allowed to get out of hand.

We Need This Power

THE B.C. ELECTRIC'S PLAN TO dam the Fraser River raises great problems of engineering, fish conservation and economics. But the fact that this gigantic project is now under practical study at once clarifies the issue of electrical power exports.

It was commonly supposed, a few years ago, that British Columbia was developing more power than it could use in the visible future. Where, it was asked, could the B.C. Electric hope to sell the output of its Bridge River plant? And as late as this year the Bennett Government was saying that we had plenty of exportable potential electricity in the Kootenay country.

Now the B.C. Electric, looking ahead to British Columbia's growth, is considering the main stream of the Fraser and its tributary, the Thompson, one of the largest remaining power sources in America.

We may not need all that potential power immediately, or even in this generation. Assuredly we shall need it later on and, indeed, all the power we can extract from such rivers, to fuel our industries and supply our homes.

The Federal Government's policy of refusing to export any electricity, or water to make electricity, except under unavoidable conditions, has always been sound and has been maintained by governments of both parties. The wisdom of that national policy is strikingly confirmed when British Columbia finds it necessary to prepare already for the days when the Fraser must be harnessed.

Hands Across the Strait

THE CURRENTLY DISCUSSED plan for mass visits between residents of Victoria and Port Angeles is one that should be given immediate constructive thought and action.

Here is an idea that could be developed into an annual event of great significance. It would be a hands-across-the-sea project perhaps without duplicate anywhere in the world; a living demonstration of international friendship and neighborliness that would set an example to peoples in all lands.

There is almost no limit to which the concept can be carried. Mentioned have been exchanges between church congregations, service clubs, sports groups and labor organizations. But these need be only a start. All sections of both communities can be represented in the program. Inter-city visits of members and elderly folk, sponsored by the Elks association, already have taken place and local yachting organizations plan cross-strait races for the coming weekend. There must be many other undertakings of interest to both cities that will receive encouragement from the present plans.

Of these, the mass excursions would be the major feature. But they could be preceded and followed—why not year-round—by numerous group activities.

For thirty-five years the Peace Arch at Blaine has been a symbol of the enduring friendship between Canada and the United States. The Victoria-Port Angeles interchange could become an equally enduring, and much more human, symbol of that friendship. It has the simplicity common to great ideas. It deserves public and private support in every way.

Mr. Crossman's Nightmare

THE LEFT WING OF THE BRITISH Labor Party (always an articulate minority) must somehow put a false face on the United States. If one mask of horror wears out, another is invented.

The latest was shaped by the skillful hands of Mr. R. H. Crossman, MP, who always writes much better than he thinks. According to Mr. Crossman, the world now faces the hideous prospect of the United States and Russia becoming too friendly.

"When," he says, "these Americans and Russians get together, with Stalin out of the way, they'll go places fast."

No doubt they will, but what harm would that involve for Britain and the world? If the two largest powers could indeed agree, and work together, the world not only would escape the ultimate horror of atomic war but might well usher in, with modern techniques, its greatest age.

Mr. Crossman's nightmare of two colossi bestriding the globe in sinister partnership will hardly scare the average man in Britain or anywhere else. Anyway, he knows that at the moment this kind of co-operation is too good to be true.

The latest yelp from the dog house of British politics only reiterates in a new, up-side-down version the left wing's incurable animosity toward the United States, mainly because it stubbornly refuses to accept socialism.

Only a few months ago these same prophets, in sack cloth and ashes, were warning the British people that the United States alone stood between the world and friendship with Russia. The American Government was pictured as a trigger-happy moron, ready to drop the bomb on Moscow at any moment.

Now we are asked to believe that it is afflicted with a new insanity because it is desperately seeking some kind of reconciliation with Russia. Whatever it does, it must be wrong because it is the United States. It must be evil because it is not socialist.

'Oh, No! Not a Traffic Problem There, Too!'

Chips

BY DAVID BROCK

A READER has asked me if I have heard of the English colonel who removed the trousers from a lawyer he didn't like, and who photographed the lawyer in a trouserless state and while wearing paper cap or hat. Before going off to prison, the English colonel said he did these things to draw attention to the lawyer's professional shortcomings... his shortcomings as perhaps too hastily assessed by an obviously hasty colonel.

Yes, I did hear of this little incident. I believe it took place in Sussex, during the last days of July at the end of a British heat-wave. Colonels sometimes resent heat-waves. They prefer to make their own. To offer a colonel a heat-wave is to bring coals to Newcastle, and not very good coals at that. (Incidentally, I am speaking of the typical colonel of fiction and the stage. It is surprising how many colonels in real life try to model themselves on these laughable but imaginary creatures.)

I HEARD of the incident, but dismissed it lightly from my mind, for I didn't think the colonel's method an ideal one for showing a lawyer up. It sounded more like the action of an acting-captain or a brevet-major. To attach too much importance to the removal of another chap's trousers is to proclaim oneself a child. A colonel shouldn't seem like some sort of grotesque Peter Pan engaged in a screaming rag in the jolly old mess. Far from it. A colonel should seem like a man who hasn't smiled for the last ten years... and who has been very badly treated for the last ten years, so that he is old before his time. He should also seem like a dragon who is having furnace-trouble... a furnace that keeps backfiring. A furnace around which it is dangerous to let rubbish accumulate, whether the rubbish is legal documents or anything else.

AND if I were a colonel who wanted to make a spectacle of a hostile lawyer, what would I do myself? I can hardly tell you until after my promotion. I believe in dealing with situations as they arise, without too many superstitions carried over from my youth. If I had long ago formed myself a set of rules for dealing with lawyers, I might be so foolish as to continue in a superstitious and childish faith in the efficacy of the removal of the human trouser. Then which...

However, I would be prepared to consider horsewhipping. I have never understood why horsewhipping has gone out of fashion... it offered such a wonderful and almost unique way of performing a rather cowardly deed while getting a reputation for bravery. To hit a man in the face with a bottle or a shoe or even with a chair was considered poor form, but to do it with a lash was very sporting, and put you and your lawyer (if that was whom you were whipping) on very equal terms.

YOU will perhaps suggest that horsewhipping is too usual. At one time it may have been. But no longer. It is simply ages since I horsewhipped anyone, either lawyer or layman, and I feel sure this is true of most of my neighbors. You'd be surprised how many hackneyed deeds of fiction would create an immense stir if done in real life. Only last week I heard of a genuine colonel trying to throttle a genuine schoolmaster on the floor of an English club, and it made a terrific impression. Just a simple throttling, mind you. How our grandfathers would have laughed.

THE MASTER WORD

INCIDENTALLY, you might like to hear how the colonel was persuaded to stop throttling the schoolteacher. Not only was the colonel twice as fiery as anything in fiction, but he hated schoolmasters with a blazing and peculiar intensity. A mongoose feels the same way about snakes, or a bull terrier about cats, or an Irish politician about "our natural enemy" (meaning poor old England). So, naturally, he saw no reason to stop throttling the teacher, just because the other members asked him to. He felt that anyone who stopped throttling a teacher was a quitter and also anti-social. And lazy, too, and possibly a maniac, or worse. Maybe a dope-fiend. Do you ever see dope-fiends throttling teachers? No. Well, then, that shows which way the wind blows.

FINALLY one of the members got down on his knee and hissed in the colonel's ear: "And you call yourself an officer and a gentleman, do you, Colonel?" The colonel got to his feet at once and dusted himself off, gasping. Not to challenge the speaker, either, but simply to ask himself if he really HAD been behaving like a gentleman. He did not want anyone to think him guilty of ungentlemanly throttling. He kept saying "Good God!" over and over again. Finally he apologized to the room at large... though possibly making a mental reservation about the schoolmaster. Incidentally, I am not making this up. The daughter of the peace-maker told me the story. And she thought, as I do too, that there may be certain advantages in being so steeped in outworn and comical traditions that you can master your spirit with them. Even when you are in the middle of choking a teacher.

Creaking But Not Collapsing

BY STEWART ALSOP, From Moscow

THERE are two very simple facts, taken together, that provide the main clue to the much discussed internal problem of the whole Soviet system. The first is the fact that Moscow is on about the same latitude as Labrador, Hudson, Bay, or Sika, Alaska. In other words, the Russian land mass is very far north. This in turn means a dangerously short growing season except in the most southerly parts of Russia, and no real growing season at all in the north. And this is why, even with the best agricultural system in the world, and despite the immensity of the Russian land area, it would still be difficult to grow enough food for the Soviet population.

The second fact is that the whole Soviet system is squarely based on ruthless exploitation of the peasantry, in order to provide the capital for industrial expansion.

ENORMOUS PROFIT

The way it is done is essentially very simple. The state pays the collective farms artificially low prices for what they produce. The state then sells the farm produce for as much as ten times what it paid. This enormous profit margin provides the bulk of capital for new plant and equipment for Soviet industry, plus the funds for the huge Soviet war machine.

Put these two facts together and you see why the Soviet agricultural crisis, about which the world has heard so much, is no new thing, but something inherent in the system.

The crisis has been going on ever since Stalin forced collectivization on the peasants in the early thirties, starving some 3,000,000 people in order to achieve it. Stalin did so, not simply out of wanton cruelty, but because he recognized that collectivization of the land was essential in order to sweat the peasants for the capital for industrial expansion and for funds for the war machine.

The present Soviet rulers cannot possibly abandon collective agriculture unless they are prepared to abandon communism, which they are not. But the collective system is by its very nature inefficient.

Essentially, the collective farming system is an attempt to apply the Soviet method of industrial production to agricultural production. The Russian peasant has "norms" to fulfill, just like a Russian factory worker. As in the case of the worker, the peasant's income depends on how well he fulfills his norms.

MECHANICAL APPROACH

But a sick calf is not like a piece of machinery. You cannot use a mechanical approach to biology because biology is not mechanical. One result of trying to do so is that the collective farms are cursed with bookkeepers, bosses, overseers and all the trappings of bureaucracy. Overall, it requires six or seven Soviet workers on the land to produce what one American agricultural worker produces.

Add the short Russian growing season, less the continuing voracious demand for funds from Soviet industry and the Soviet war machine, and it is easy to see why the Soviet agricultural crisis is permanent.

In statistical terms, the crisis is easy to describe.

The Soviet population is growing at a rate of about 15 per cent a year, and farm production is increasing at a rate of only about 1 per cent. In the long run—the very long run—this could be a formula for mass starvation. Moreover, the rate of increase in farm production has only been maintained by all sorts of temporary expedients.

LIVESTOCK DOWN

For example, grain and potato crops have long been emphasized at the expense of livestock; since grain supplies far more calories per acre than meat. But this process has now reached the point of no return, with the livestock population of Russia lower than before the Revolution.

Again, the system of crop rotation was recently denounced by Nikita Khrushchev, and in many areas the soil is currently being mined to increase immediate production at the expense of future fertility.

Another temporary expedient has been the training of some 30,000 hard-core young Communists to take over the management of the collective farms. This, so far, has led only to bitterness and confusion. At the same time, the much publicized attempt to exploit some vast acreages of marginal land has been undertaken, an attempt which, depending on the weather, could quite easily fail disastrously.

Finally, in order to provide incentives, the Soviet rulers have done what they least wished to do—they have given the farm workers a bigger share of the national income. This in turn has been the major factor in the current Soviet inflation, thus reducing the available margin of funds to pay for industrial expansion and the war machine.

"Inflation," significantly, is the one word no Soviet censor will pass—when this reporter tried to suggest the same thing with the phrase "rationing by the purse," the sharp-eyed censor caught and cut it out.

ENDLESS LINES

But the inflation is there, visible to the naked eye; in the endless lines of people waiting to buy shoddy, fantastically over-priced consumer goods.

Add finally the severe demands made on the Soviet economy by the satellites, and, above all China, and it is easy to see why the Russian rulers now want a breathing spell. But here the usual caveat must be entered.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to the contrary, the Soviet system is nowhere near being "on the point of collapse." In the ways outlined, the Soviet system has problems, and the Soviet agricultural system works particularly badly. But the system works all the same.

One way or another, by one expedient or another, the system will be made to keep on working, even if it again becomes necessary to adopt mass starvation as Soviet national policy. Nothing could be more dangerous than to base American national policy on the assumption that the Soviet system is suddenly and delightfully going to come apart at the seams.

As Our Readers See It

DEFERRED PAYMENTS

In the Aug. 6 issue of your valuable paper I note an item on Page 2, with the caption "Ottawa Hikes Interest Rate," the objective being to curtail too easily obtained credit, which made my thoughts revert to about May, 1951, when a similar boost from 1% to 1½% was introduced for same purpose.

But how easily the manufacturers and the retailers negotiated that hurdle by upping the selling price of their goods and accepting some antique article as a down payment, the balance covered by signing on the dotted line.

Even today our transport officials are soliciting air travel custom on a 10% down basis, the balance like the cars, etc., payable as you ride, over the years.

Judging from chartered bank stock advances over these past few years, business generally must be very lucrative, but as an old-timer, one cannot help but wonder if this deferred payment system of buying is the real secret of good sound merchandising.

Thrifty habits were considered a great virtue 50 years ago, but who cares about a few grey hairs now-a-days!

OUT OF HAND?

May I respectfully suggest to "Old-Timer" who in your issue of Aug. 8, in what he terms a momentous quest, states his church has hundreds of millions of followers in every land on the face of the earth, that I fear his figures have got a trifle out of hand.

May I say that in an honest count of followers who actually believed his church's teaching, not just members who do not know what they are expected to believe, not even one million actual believers in all countries combined could be found.

To be a church member does not necessarily mean that the intelligent educated person believes what he (or she) is supposed to believe.

Germany After Geneva

In the sinister history of diplomatic parleys—open or secret—which have taken place since the beginning of this century, the recent Geneva conference may be classified the most innocuous and contains the least of potential tragic effects.

Even if the only result is, in President Eisenhower's words: "A new spirit of friendliness in the world," this in itself is the exact opposite of the aims and results of all similar parleys of diplomats from the secret treaties of London of 1915 to the Potsdam Pact of 1945, all of which were manifestations of the existing international anarchy, economic capitalism, insatiable greed and inhuman injustice.

After every conflict we declared in a spirit of self-pity that we won the war and lost the peace, not realizing that war is an expression of international lawlessness, which, like all evils spawns more evil instead of peace. And if nations are not at each others throat again, it is only the conviction that war henceforth means self-destruction.

Of course, we do not believe that the miracle on the road to Damascus which changed Saul into St. Paul has been reenacted on the way from Moscow to Geneva for the benefit of the Russian delegates. Even if they are prompted solely by the spirit of self-preservation to act like reasonable, social-minded human beings, willing to discuss our mutual problems in a conciliatory spirit, we ought to be truly thankful, hoping that it may become habit.

The period of transition may be slow and require all our patience and forbearance realizing that our own national failings are many. If the Communist delegates declare that the time is not ripe for German reunification, we understand that in their view, the time will not be ripe until the millions of young Germans in the Russian zone are sufficiently in-doctrinated in Marxian ideology to be willing to fight for their convictions, to create a state of civil war and deliver the whole of Germany into the proletarian dictatorship of Russia.

When the Communist grandees will visit England to meet with royalty, aristocracy and bourgeoisie, the classes they had to liquidate at home to establish Marxism, they'll give gentle warnings that the 40,000 Germans in Adenauer's domain are making themselves already disagreeably felt in competing with British trade. Why bring in 20,000,000 more and worsen the situation?

And where is Chancellor Adenauer's stand in this vanity fair?

As he comes down from the Swiss mountain he'll wonder why the righteous are always forsaken. He'll discover soon that his duty-visit to the Kremlin will be his pilgrimage to Cannossa. And like Emperor Henry IV, who had to stand barefooted in the courtyard of the castle, begging Pope Gregory's pardon, Adenauer will be asked to repent and do penance in hard coin for having worshipped the golden calf of the "Wall Street Gangsters."

A. K.

Culloden

(An Acrostic Verse)

Clans of the Highlands who, never despairing,
Unto the end fought, and then, nobly fell,
Lie there in peace, Scotland's glory e'er sharing.
Loyal defenders, whose praises we tell;
Only the dead know the whole of your daring,
Deeds nobly done which would blazon your fame,
Ever we praise, though you lie now uncaring,
"Neath granite stone-graven deep—with your name!"

EDITH M. DUNNE.

Junior Castle Expert

LONDON—I had my early schooling in the Dominions, but to top off my education my family sent me to an English public school. It was Berkhamsted School, about 30 miles north of London.

When you are a product of a public school it is usual to put your son, if you have one, into the same school. So I suppose young Mac will eventually be going there, if he can pass the entrance exam.

Actually, I went there under false pretences. I failed the entrance exam. But since I had come from a far-flung outpost of the Empire, the authorities felt they could hardly turn down someone who had come more than 10,000 miles to attend the school.

Last Saturday being a nice day, I decided to take a run up to Berkhamsted to let Mac see the school he would be going to. For the occasion, my wife bought me a new Old School Tie. The one I had I use to hold up my gardening pants and it's a bit ropey by now.

We took the train from Euston and were soon at the quiet, truly-rural little town of Berkhamsted, in Hertfordshire. Mac was very excited, but I was somewhat disappointed when I realized that his excitement wasn't really about seeing the school. There's a castle at Berkhamsted and, since he's a castle crazy, here was a chance to add another to his list of those he has visited.

Through him I learned that Berkhamsted Castle is unique in that it is the only castle in England with three moats. Not only that, they still have water in them, which isn't usual. Most castle moats are long since dehydrated. And it's a Royal castle, none of your mere baronial stuff. The Black Prince lived there. William of Orange accepted the English crown there.

Mac revelled in his history lessons virtually coming to life before his eyes. So much so that I had to keep reminding him that the object of the operation was to see the school he's going to attend.

We got there eventually and he waited patiently while father looked up back dates of the school magazine in the library, seeking reports of his achievements. I was overjoyed to find several mentions, all of them, however, to do with sport. On the academic side I'd maintained the standard I set at the entrance exam.

Then we did a tour of the school and I showed Mac the gymnasium, where he had a go with the fencing foils... the music building, where he had a bang on the tympani, plucked the harp and tried out other instruments of the school's symphony orchestra... the swimming pool, where slum kids from a boys' club of London's East End were being entertained... the chapel, in size large enough to be a church which any township would be proud of... the printing shop, carpentry shop, metal works, the hospital... the "fives" (handball) courts... acres of playing fields where some of the 650 boys were at cricket... the lawn tennis courts... the "tuck shop," where youngsters fill up with candies and pop... the indoor rifle range, where Mac had a crack at the target and nearly winged the resident sergeant-major.

Only when we were on our way back to the train did I realize there was one thing I had missed among the numerous buildings of the 400-year-old school—the classrooms. They must have been there somewhere, but I couldn't remember where.

The English public school aims to produce a well-rounded-out young man—not just one crammed full of book-learning.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Nursing the Aged Sick

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine Mayo Foundation.

I have just been looking at an interesting and valuable little book, by Dr. T. N. Rudd, on "The Nursing of the Elderly Sick" (Lippincott, Phila.). It could be of great help to a family faced with the problem of taking care of an elderly person who perhaps has become bedridden or a bit childish, as after a stroke. So many problems arise, and many of them due to the attitudes taken by the sick person. Often he antagonizes those about him by being irritable, difficult, "ornery," suspicious, childish or very forgetful. Often it is hard for the family to be patient, but they should keep remembering that the old person is not just "cussed"; he is ill, with perhaps the best part of his brain damaged beyond repair.

There will be many problems of keeping up nutrition, perhaps of avoiding bed-sores, or of making the person more comfortable in bed, and of avoiding contractures of joints. There may be problems of occasional incontinence of urine and faeces; or there may be great restlessness so that the old person wants to walk through the house at all hours of the night, turning on all lights or perhaps taking a bath. There may be problems of protecting the old person from giving away his money, or hiding it somewhere. Or, there may be problems of teaching the person who has had a stroke to walk again, to talk again, and perhaps to use his left hand. These problems are all discussed in this little book.

APHASIA THERAPEUTICS

Another book which can be of great help in the homes of persons who have lost the power of speech is called "Aphasia Therapeutics" (Mary C. Longrich and Jean Bordeaux, Macmillan, New York, 1954, $3.75). These women tell in detail what can be done to help "aphasics," as we doctors call them, to talk again.

Incidentally, I was reading the other day a note by a physician who, after a stroke, lost his speech. He quickly invented a brief sign language, using his left hand, and then he taught his relatives what each sign meant. This now helps him tremendously in dealing with his people, and in getting them to bring him something he wants.

Still another book which can be tremendously helpful, especially if the old person has developed severe arthritis, is that of Dr. Paul Holbrook and Donald F. Hill, of Tucson, Arizona (Yearbook Pub. Inc., Chicago, 1950). It is full of practical ideas. Another wonderful book of this type is called, "Living with a Disability, at Home, at Work, at Play." It is by Howard A. Rusk and Eugene J. Taylor (Blakiston, Garden City, N.Y.). This book is filled with pictures of all sorts of gadgets that will enable a somewhat crippled or badly arthritic person to take care of himself and perhaps even get back into industry.

Another wonderful book is called, "Care of the Aged, the Dying and the Dead," by Dr. Alfred Worcester (Thomas, Springfield, Ill., 1940). This book, many times reprinted, is a gem, and every thoughtful person who has an aged and slowly-dying parent or relative could get great instruction and comfort from it.

Another wonderful book, a large one, is on "How to Help Older People"; it is by Julietta K. Arthur (Lippincott, Phila., $4.95). Any woman who is at her wits' end trying to keep an aged parent busy and happy and in good health would love this book. Another splendid book, designed to keep older persons happy, is by Jerome Kaplan, and is called, "A Social Program for Older People" (Univ. of Minnesota Press, Minneapolis, $3.00). It is one of the best and most sensible books I have seen about bringing satisfaction and happiness to old people who have retired.

KEEP YOUR VOICE HEALTHY

Every month I read books which I know hundreds or thousands of my readers would enjoy. For instance, I just read a book by Dr. Broditz on "Keep Your Voice Healthy" (Harcourt, $3.50). All those who sing and who speak in public could get help from this book. The author is the director of the New York Society for Speech and Voice Therapy.

Another book which could help many people is Dr. Lester L. Coleman's "Freedom from Fear" (Hawthorn Books, Inc., New York, $3.95). Dr. Coleman is editor of the Family Magazine. If it weren't for the unwise and unjustifiable fears of a few million persons come of us physicians wouldn't have much to do.

SCHOLARSHIPS FOR ABLE BOYS

Believing firmly, as I do, that the greatest assets of the United States are brilliant boys and girls who, with good training, will become able physicians, physicists, chemists, engineers, inventors, and builders of things, I am very happy to see that the president has shown interest in a plan to provide up to 25 million dollars annually for scholarships for some 40,000 of the youths who came to the top in examinations. I cannot imagine a better use for our money.

FATHER OF 8 ENTERS LAKE ONTARIO SWIM

LONDON, Ont. (BUP)—Alfred Marchant, 55-year-old father of eight children, wants to become the oldest man to swim Lake Ontario.

The lean, grey-haired house painter will enter the Canadian National Exhibition swim across the lake on Sept. 5. He intends to complete the 10-mile qualifying distance at Fanshawe Lake on Thursday, and to make a 15-mile training swim Sunday.

Three London doctors signed a medical certificate which said that despite his age, Marchant was in excellent physical condition.

Medical Authorities OK Marathon Swims

Healthy Athletes Unharmed Physically By Grind if Properly Trained, Supervised

MONTREAL (CP)—Three Montreal medical authorities said today that properly supervised long-distance swims should do no harm to healthy persons.

Their comment followed the reported condemnation of marathon swims by alderman William Allen of Toronto.

After 19-year-old Shirley Campbell of Fergus, Ont., failed to complete a swim across Lake Ontario last week, the alderman was quoted as saying distance swims are "barbaric and criminal." He called for cancellation of the Canadian National Exhibition marathon swim.

Dr. Arnold Jones, swimming adviser to the Quebec Red Cross, said the alderman's suggestion was "sort of silly" because there is no need for a ban if swimmers are properly prepared physically for the effort.

"The human body can't go beyond its limits," he said. "It just quits. That's what happened to Shirley."

Dr. Jones said a swimmer, of course, should have a good coach and professional training.

NEED CAREFUL CHECKUP

Dr. F. Munroe Bourne, heart specialist who swam in the 100 and 200-metre sprints for Canada in the 1928, 1932 and 1946 Olympic Games, said swim marathons should not harm the heart if contestants are carefully checked before and found healthy.

Dr. Everett Crutchlow, who looks after McGill University's swimming team, said "the business about grueling swims hurting the heart was exploded long ago."

"It's like the fuss about so-called athlete's heart developing

Unemployment Next Winter Over 600,000?

OTTAWA (BUP)—Unemployment probably will top the 600,000 mark again next winter, a labor department source said today.

The country's fast-expanding economy, he said, is providing more employment but, at the same time, the number of new workers joining the labor force is rising rapidly. For about two years the labor force has been running ahead of job opportunities.

The relation of job chances to labor force bears major implications for the drafters of the country's immigration plans. The experience of recent years shows that, to absorb both immigrant workers and the yearly army of young Canadians entering the labor force, the country's productive capacity must climb enough to provide more than 100,000 new jobs each year.

The labor department spokesman harked back to mid-1953. From then until the end of 1954, he noted, the total of new workers coming on the market spiralled at such a pace that last Dec. 31 the country was more than 150,000 jobs in arrears.

That 150,000-plus, coupled with the normal seasonal lag, led to last winter's postwar jobless peaks.

Magnifying Glass Reveals New Beauty

There can be no monotony for the gardener. When his eyes tire of the brilliant colors and forms of the lavishly summer garden, he may refresh his eyes and soul with something among the miniatures.

A simple plant, the borage, one of the kitchen herbs whose leaves taste like cucumbers and may be used such in green salads, has flowers less than three quarters of an inch wide. When seen under a magnifying glass, they are fascinating.

Their five-pointed petals of summer sky blue open from tight pink buds. Indeed the pink gradually changes to blue as the sky at dawn fades from its early rosiness to the blue of morning. Note also the grey woolly calyx sections, and the intricate details of the other flower parts. Such beauty is refreshing.

Another tiny blossom which merits close inspection is that of Asclepias tuberosa, the butterfly weed of the eastern roadsides, but here a delightful late summer border plant. It is also known as "swallow wort." The rather flat head of blossoms occurs on leafy stems 12 to 15 inches high, and it consists of several dozens of tiny flowers. The over-all color is a warm orange. That is, shades from yellow to deep orange, and each blossom is a half inch high and the same across.

Under the glass, it will be noticed that the five-pointed petals are surmounted by five upright sections, the whole arrangement giving an air of gay abandon which is a lift to the spirits. Yes, when summer colors pall, find new beauty among the miniatures with a magnifying glass.

Builders, Motorists May Clash Over New Zoning By-Law Clauses

Victoria's proposed new zoning by-law which will be subject of a public hearing Sept. 8, sets down regulations for builders which will have the ultimate effect of improving parking facilities.

That is the view of the town planning commission. On the other hand, some of the builders feel the new regulations favor the motorist but might drive the apartment builder out of town.

The argument may boil over at the hearing. Meantime, TPC officials have described their case as follows:

They say that according to the old zoning by-law, which was adopted in 1929 and is still in force, unloading from any property could take place on the street and there was no requirement for the provision of off-street parking space.

REMOVES LOADING

Now, in view of the tremendous increase in traffic, and the feeling that even present day traffic will double in the next three to five years, the by-law proposes that loading and unloading at all new commercial and industrial buildings take place off the street, on private property.

A detailed formula is suggested for these spaces for all new buildings.

For non-residential building, off-street parking space does not necessarily have to be on the site, but must be within a 1,000-foot radius.

Small commercial industrial establishments with less than 2,500 square feet of floor space need not provide a parking area.

SPACES NEEDED

Here is a list of requirements in the by-law, giving first the type of building and, in parentheses, the number of off-street parking spaces:

Single family dwelling (one). Two-family dwelling (one per dwelling).

Auto courts and motels (one per dwelling). Apartments (one per dwelling).

Auditorium (one per 10 seats). Churches (one per 15 seats).

Clubs (one per 1,000 square feet of floor area). Open air business (one per 2,000 square feet of floor area).

Hospitals (one per six beds).

Downed 'Copter May Be Lifted Bodily by Second Whirlybird

SCRAMBLED WRECKAGE of $40,000 Bell helicopter of Vancouver Island Helicopters Ltd. lies today on bed of Homathko River, 65 miles northeast of Campbell River. Firm officials believe it salvageable. It crashed Saturday in company's first charter flight.

and Henson are both Victorians. Trio walked 45 miles from crash site for help. Right is VIHL engineer Ted Protheroe who was at base camp. He and Henson were flown by B.C. Air Lines to homes here Tuesday night.

Salvage plans were being laid here today to bring out the $40,000 Bell helicopter which crashed Saturday on its first charter flight in the wilderness 65 miles northeast of Campbell River with three men aboard.

Vancouver Island Helicopters Ltd. pilot and co-owner, Ted Henson, 3884 Shelbourne, with B.C. Power Commission engineer Werner Cramer, Victoria, and photo-surveyor Hans Schowalter, Vancouver, were flown to Campbell River Tuesday after a 45-mile hike through bush and over mountains to reach the Eva Creek logging camp.

Mr. Henson, 20 pounds lighter from the gruelling walk which saw the trio exist for nearly three days on a handful of berries, has already had an offer from Carl Agar of Okanagan Helicopters, Vancouver, to undertake salvage as soon as a craft is available.

Damage to the VIHL aircraft was estimated by Mr. Henson at $12,000. While the plane itself is wrecked, instruments, engine and other mechanical parts are not badly damaged.

Alternative plans for salvage being considered are to bring in a giant Sikorsky 'copter to the crash site and lift the downed craft out bodily.

If these measures fail to work, Mr. Henson said he will go in with VIHL engineer Ted Protheroe and pack out salvageable portions of the ship. It would be a two-day job.

It is likely the crash will be investigated by the Department of Transport.

The loss was fully covered by insurance.

The craft plunged into the turbulent Homathko River on the mainland.

"The engine started missing, so I had to bring her down," Mr. Henson recalled today. He went for a large flat rock in the river and had just touched down when the aircraft flipped "like a cartwheel."

The trio climbed out, uninjured but badly shaken, from the broken plastic dome.

Mr. Henson tried to hike to a base camp a mile away, but was prevented reaching there as it was on the other side of the river. At the camp were Mr. Protheroe, Allan Jackson and Edward Honcharuk of the power commission. The pilot was able to yell their flight to Mr. Protheroe.

They were forced to walk out.

REFUSED COMMISSION—Eugene William Landy hugs his mother, Mrs. Deborah Landy at Kings Point, N.Y., following graduation ceremonies of the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy. Landy, who was notified that he had been refused a commission in the U.S. Naval Reserve, said he had signed a sworn statement that he had never been associated with any subversive organization. He said his mother had carried a Communist Party card in 1945 but he thought she had ended her association with the Communists by 1947. — (NEA Telephoto)

'Enemy' Patrol Wiped Out After Unexpected Alarm; Hurricane Threat Steps Up Program

CAMP GAGETOWN, N.B. (CP)—Hurricane Connie forced an advance Tuesday night in the time-schedule for the 1st Canadian Infantry Division's Exercise Rising Star.

The hurricane, now moving north off the United States coast, could hit this vicinity sometime Friday. It was not yet known whether the 430-square-mile camp about 30 miles inland from the Bay of Fundy would feel the full force of the blow or receive only a tailwash.

Directors of the exercise were laying careful plans for the striking of tents and protection of troops and equipment.

The week-long exercise was originally scheduled to conclude about Saturday noon but now will end about mid-Friday after a full-scale counter-attack by the division.

Little more than sporadic chatter of fire sounded Tuesday on the broad front held by the division.

PLANS GO WRONG

How the best-laid plans of staff officers can go haywire was exhibited early today in the exercise.

A simulated night air drop was carried out in the division's rear with the object of knocking out a bridge. The troops didn't parachute but were moved secretly within a mile of the bridge and began to advance toward it.

Meanwhile, a pile of gas cans near the bridge fell down. This was not part of the exercise. One soldier thought it was rifle fire and set off the alarm of an impending attack.

When the "enemy" paratroop patrol got near the bridge, it was theoretically wiped out by the defenders.

Wage Boosts For 3 Million Asked in U.K.

BLACKPOOL, England (Reuters)—Leaders of two of Britain's biggest organized labor groups today decided to press wage demands on behalf of more 3,000,000 workers that would cost a total of £100,000,000.

The Confederation of Shipbuilding and Engineering Unions, meeting here, unanimously decided to submit a "substantial claim" to employers for 2,500,000 workers.

In London, the executive of the National Union of Railwaymen decided to refer the question of a new wage demand for its 370,000 members to its negotiating committee for "urgent consideration."

The Shipbuilders' and Machine Trades' resolution, supported by electricians, foundry workers and boilermakers, also affiliated to the confederation, did not specify the size of the proposed increase. But union leaders are thought to have increases of about 10 per cent in mind.

Last March machine trades and shipbuilding workers received pay raises of from eight shillings to 11 shillings a week, slightly less than what they had been asking.

End to Censorship Studied by Soviets

MOSCOW (AP)—A Soviet spokesman said Tuesday night the government is studying whether to lift censorship on all dispatches sent from the Soviet Union.

Leonid F. Ilyichev, press chief of the foreign ministry, gave this response to an inquiry. He said also he knew of no change in the status of correspondents of Communist newspapers.

Western correspondents in Moscow have long suspected that writers for papers like Italy's L'Unita and France's L'Humanite have been able to skip censorship.

There has been some relaxation of censorship for correspondents representing the non-Communist world. Dispatches telephoned abroad reporting on such events as foreign ministry press conferences and meetings of the Supreme Soviet are not censored, as a general rule.

Central Saanich In Hot Debate On Road Policy

Local Improvement By-Law Method Opposed to General Financing

By DICK FREEMAN

SAANICHTON—Central Saanich council sat for three hours Tuesday night in a session filled with heated debate and recrimination, and then adjourned to meet again next Tuesday to complete unfinished business.

The contentious petition on the municipality's road construction policy flared up again with Clr. Harold Andrew challenging Reeve H. R. Brown that the petition was wholly misleading. The reeve in rebuttal strongly maintained his stand.

Personalities were freely indulged in and after a fling of acrimonious passages Clr. Andrew moved that the petition be received and filed, but he could find no seconder.

"I'm objecting to the manner in which the petition was presented," said Clr. Andrew. "I claim it is misleading."

He cited instances where new roadwork had been done out of general revenue, whereas, he claimed, the petition tressed that it was the policy of all municipalities to follow the local improvement plan.

"I say it's all tommyrot," shouted Clr. Andrew.

"And I say it is not tommyrot," countered Reeve Brown.

LET PEOPLE DECIDE

"I don't care which way we settle this question, but let the people decide by plebiscite," added the reeve.

Clr. John Windsor thought there should be a "definite mandate" by the voters.

Clr. Harry Peard took the view that if new roadwork was for the benefit of the whole district, he was in favor of it.

Clr. Andrew contended local improvement had never been passed by the council, adding, "I challenge anyone to say that it has."

Reeve Brown charged that Clr. Andrew was "picking holes" in the petition.

"Sure I am," countered Clr. Andrew. "That is my privilege."

Clr. Peard said he didn't think "we should go to the people every time a controversial issue comes up."

A delegation of fishing operators again waited on council to get something definite concerning foreshore licences, but went away without receiving much satisfaction.

BOARD DECISION

Reeve Brown pointed out that council delegation had waited upon superintendent of lands R. E. Burns and had been given to understand that the decision rested with the parks board. It was the prerogative of the board to give easement over land administered by them. But the reeve stressed that the recommendation of parks board must be directed to the council.

Then it would be sent on to the government. Clr. Peard commented that it "will be spring before you get the government's ruling."

"We are asking for very little more water than we now have," said Capt. Eric Barnes. "We want to know just where we stand." Clr. Peard moved that council write the parks board for its recommendation and also obtain government ratification. This carried.

Redvers E. Smith, representing a group of property owners on Senanus Road who are prepared to spend up to $1,000 to get the road gravelled and widened under local improvement plan and under municipal supervision, returned to plead his case, but got nowhere.

ROAD TROUBLE

Clr. Peard, pointing out that the road was built by the pioneer Thomson family in the early days commented, "I think these people deserve some consideration as taxpayers."

Reeve Brown asked Mr. Smith if his principals would object to getting a contractor to figure on the work.

He claimed that with an expenditure of $1,000 it would still be a substandard road and the money would be wasted.

"You get a contractor and we will do everything possible to assist you," said the reeve.

"We feel we have a right to some service from the council," said Mr. Smith.

Motion by Clr. Andrew was adopted that council obtain a contractor's estimate on alternatives of a 24-foot and 22-foot road with 12-inch gravel topping together with necessary ditching and culverts.

"That is entirely unacceptable to us," muttered Mr. Smith as he left the council chamber.

Clr. Windsor reported on his deliberations with the inter-municipal library committee and strongly urged that council accept in principle the compromise agreement offered.

The reeve said he had talked with a lot of people in the municipality and had yet to find one who was really satisfied with the library setup.

On motion of Clr. Windsor it was decided that Central Saanich continue in the library scheme as at present and that a referendum or plebiscite be held in December.

AROUND AND ABOUT

With Jo Healy

Recently we had occasion to take a necessary but rare trip up the Island, my first beyond the outskirts of Nanaimo. With a short weekend ahead it wouldn't be too leisurely a drive, but like happy wanderers we sped along, our minds receptive to who knew what adventure.

As much as by the utter loveliness of the countryside (and I thought that from Nanaimo north it has a freshness and sweeping sense of space far surpassing that of the lower Island) we were happily impressed by the courtesy that we met on the road.

In the little while that it takes to roll 40-odd miles, two drivers took the time to call our attention to the left back tire, which turned out to have a slow leak. One samaritan drove a shabby panel truck, carrying as passengers two small children. The other was a sleek and opulent ranch-wagon of current vintage.

We liked the consideration of the garage attendant in providing our driver with transportation for the half-mile to the coffee-shop where we were waiting. And the speed with which the tire was repaired.

We liked an attendant at another service-station who readily agreed to supply the young man of the house with ten fire-chief helmets for his baseball team; and who, on finding by phone that the supply was short at headquarters, arranged to have the head-gear delivered to the nearest point on the home-ward road, to be picked up at our convenience.

We warmed to the cheerful camaraderie of the crew of the old "Cardena" on which two of us embarked (to my envy) at Campbell River for a jaunt up-coast.

Human encounters lifted our spirits continually, to be talked over later and quietly appreciated. We found a cheerful friendliness wherever we went, not bestowed on us as potential customers but with such a warmth of honest fellowship as would take a heart of flint to reject. It's so often a nice old world.

The report that a man had been charged in police court for the theft of a pair of eye-glasses (under $50 it said), caused me to raise my brows in puzzled speculation. Why spectacles? For, as you'd know if you'd worn the things, of necessity, for years, nobody but nobody, can use another's glasses. There just aren't two identical corrections.

One morning ached with a daughter in a hotelroom. I arose groggily when the early call came. First, as always, putting the old cheaters in place, I crept out of bed and gropingly started to dress. As I forced my right foot into a left shoe I realized that the groping was acute. Consternation turned to horror as my eyes dimly swept the room. I panicked.

"Now look here," I said to myself firmly. "Just let's not panic. Let's think this out calmly. Nothing you've done in the last day or two could cause you to lose your—well, your sight, anyway, so let's find the cause for this calamity."

So I peered around and sure enough there they were on the bedside table. I replaced daughter's glasses with my own and, leaning out the window, drank in the glory of the sunrise.

Which proves, children, if you never make a spectacle of yourself, you'll never run afoul of the law—I guess.

ISLAND DIGEST

Victoria Daily Times WEDNESDAY, AUG. 10, 1955 15

New Canadian Fails in Swim From Chemainus to Island

CHEMAINUS.—A local swimmer was unsuccessful in a recent attempt to swim from Chemainus to Thetis Island, a distance of approximately four miles.

Niels Nielsen, 26-year-old onshoreman gave up his unannounced swim attempt after remaining in one hour, and swimming an estimated two and a half miles.

Nielsen, who just "wanted to see what was on the other side" plunged into the waters of Stuart Channel from the beach below Cossan's Cabins at 1:55 a.m. Conditions appeared extremely favorable for the swim. However, the 160-pound swimmer was soon bucking a fast incoming tide.

Three quarters of an hour later, he was breaststroking strongly, but was far off course, and heading toward Ladysmith. Exactly one hour after he had entered the water, he signalled he was giving up the swim try.

The blonde Dane, who has been in this country three years, said he plans to try the crossing again. "I could've made it if I'd kept on, but I saw I was far off course and thought maybe it would be better to try again." Although the water was "pretty cold" the only thing that bothered him was a sore neck "from keeping my head out of the water."

Three people accompanied Nielsen on his try. Mrs. A. Crossan, Miss Eileen Duncan and Miss Barbara Crossan, followed in a rowboat, trailing a rubber tube "just in case he needed it."

Niels came to Canada from Denmark three years ago. He had originally intended to see Canada, earn some money and return to his native land. Now a longshoreman here, he intends to remain in this country. A member of the Nanaimo Flying Club, he earned his wings in June.

Native Daughter Funeral Today In California

Native of Victoria, Mrs. Reta May Kingston, 64, died Monday in Belmont, Calif. Funeral services were to be held today from San Francisco and Belmont with cremation at Alta Mesa Cemetery.

She was the wife of Frank V. Kingston, 108 Bay Tree Road, San Carlos, Calif., and sister of Walter Milroy, Huntington Park, Calif., and Mrs. Eunice Braidin, Victoria, who survive.

Mrs. Kingston was a member of California State Nurse's Association, District 37.

Bella Coola Requests Strike Intervention

BELLA COOLA, B.C. (CP)—Clifford Kopas, president of the board of trade here, Tuesday appealed to Premier Bennett to intervene in the 38-day strike by the Seafarers' International Union AFL-TLC of Union Steamships which operate passenger and freight vessels along the B.C. coast. "It's just sheer luck and help from others," Mr. Kopas said of this community 300 miles northwest of Vancouver, "that has kept our 1,300 citizens from starving and maybe dying of some kind of epidemic."

High Water At Lake Delays Dam

PORT ALBERN.—Repair work planned here for the city dam may be delayed because of high water, according to waterworks superintendent Len Crowshaw.

There is little chance repair work will be done this season, he said, as water in Lizard Lake is still high and the flow-off is heavy.

When the project does start it will be necessary to dam China Creek above the existing installation to provide the city with water while work is underway.

Council has approved purchase of 750 bags of sand to aid in the diversion scheme.

Careless Driver Fines Total $75 In Colwood Court

Two motorists were fined when they appeared in Colwood RCMP court Tuesday on careless driving charges.

Edward M. D. Smith, 1814 Oak Bay Avenue, was fined $40 and $3.50 costs. RCMP said he lost control of his auto and swerved off Sooke Road on July 24.

Fine of $35 and $3.50 costs was imposed on Samuel Gibson Mars, 1146 Mason. Mars was involved in a two-car accident July 23. Total damages were $110.

IRREGULAR?

You owe it to yourself to try Kellogg's All-Bran and milk as an aid to health and regularity. Here is a safe, natural way to help improve your "intestinal tone"—so essential to comfortable regularity.

All-Bran, made from wholesome, good-tasting whole wheat contains natural food bulk which helps correct the cause of constipation, due to insufficient bulk. All-Bran is also an excellent source of niacin (necessary for normal body functioning.)

There is only one All-Bran, Kellogg's. Famous for nearly 40 years as the original natural laxative cereal. It is milled for maximum effectiveness. We'll prove to you that All-Bran with milk will give you gentle relief from irregularity within 10 days or double your money back. That's a promise from Kellogg's, London, Ontario.

So I peered around and sure enough there they were on the bedside table. I replaced daughter's glasses with my own and, leaning out the window, drank in the glory of the sunrise.

Which proves, children, if you never make a spectacle of yourself, you'll never run afoul of the law—I guess.

CAP-THROWING RATING GETS YEAR'S DETENTION

PORTSMOUTH, Eng. (UP)—A Royal Navy court martial sentenced sailor James Stevens today to one year in prison for throwing his cap at Commodore Charles Leo Glandore Evans, CBE, DSO, DSC, RN.

Stevens, 18, appeared before Evans Aug. 3 on charges of over-staying his leave while on his honeymoon, and was sentenced to three months in prison.

Stevens started to put on his cap but changed his mind and threw it at the commodore—knocking the commodore's gold braided cap to the floor.

Quebec Brigadier Campney Successor?

By DAVE MCINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CAMP GAGETOWN, N.B.—One of the hottest pieces of speculation in the Canadian Army is that Brig. Jean Victor Allard will be Canada's next defence minister.

The rumor, it was learned today, is not just the latest army gossip but has persisted for more than a year and since the 42-year-old brigadier returned from Korea. The rumor is particularly prevalent, of course, among French-speaking soldiers.

One army source said it is believed that Prime Minister St. Laurent is carefully grooming Brig. Allard as Defence Minister Ralph Campney's successor. Such a move would not be carried out hurriedly. There is no speculation on Mr. Campney's future.

The prime minister would want to make sure that the brigadier could be elected after his appointment to the cabinet, probably in a by-election. It was recalled that Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton could not win a seat in the Commons after he was appointed defence minister in 1944.

Informants said the first move toward the top defence post might be Brig. Allard's appointment as chief of the army's Quebec command so that he would become better known in his native province.

It was also recalled that Brig. Allard, now commander of the 3rd Infantry brigade, was passed over in favor of Maj. Gen. John Rockingham when a commander for the 1st Infantry Division, now on Exercise Rising Star here, was chosen last year.

It now is said in some quarters that Brig. Allard was passed over to save him for some bigger job.

Brig. Allard, who has a distinguished war record in the Second World War and in Korea, and Mr. St. Laurent have been on cordial terms for some time. The prime minister, it is understood, often sees him in Quebec City. The 3rd Brigade, now in training here with the 1st Division, has its headquarters at Valcartier just outside Quebec City.

Brig. Allard, a tall, barrel-chested soldier, is recognized in the army as a top administrator. After serving in Europe during the Second World War he put in more than two years as military attaché in Moscow, as commander of Eastern Quebec area, as vice-quartermaster-general of the army and as commander of the 25th Brigade in Korea.

Faure Faces Cabinet Split On Morocco

Governor Asked to Ease Up On Reforms During Crisis

PARIS (Reuters)—Members of the French cabinet Tuesday were reported to have personally appealed to Gilbert Grandval, new resident-general in riot-torn Morocco, to "tone down" his plans for reform and settling Morocco's feud over the sultanate, in order to avoid a split in Premier Edgar Faure's cabinet.

They made their appeal after Grandval flew from Rabat Monday for a secret meeting in the south of France with the two ministers concerned in the North African affairs, and Gen. Pierre Koenig, defence minister, were fresh from all-day cabinet meeting Sunday in Paris. This meeting revealed dangerous divisions in its attitude to Grandval's "last chance" plan for settling Moroccan strife.

The resident-general is due to fly to Paris today to attend a meeting of the co-ordinating committee on North Africa on Thursday. This meeting will deal with his proposals.

OPPOSE PLANS

Defence Minister Koenig and most of his Gaullist and Conservative ministers are opposed, informants said, not only to Grandval's proposed dynastic changes in Morocco, but also to his plan for immediate reforms.

TURNCOAT'S TRIAL

Sick Soldiers Tossed Out to Die In 40 Below Weather, Pals Claim

NEW YORK (AP)—Two Korean veterans told Tuesday of watching from sickbeds as an American army sergeant cast two ill fellow prisoners into 40-below-zero weather to die.

A third eyewitness testified both prisoners were alive when expelled and that one of them vainly pleaded "to come back."

"He threw them out because he did not want to hear them moan and cry," testified one witness at the army court martial of 23-year-old Sgt. James C. Gallagher.

Both veterans said they feared for their own lives during the flareup of explosive terror in a Communist prison camp four years ago.

"Like a bartender bouncing a drunk... like a sack of spuds," was the way they described the ejection from their mud hovel of two dysentery patients allegedly at the hands of Gallagher.

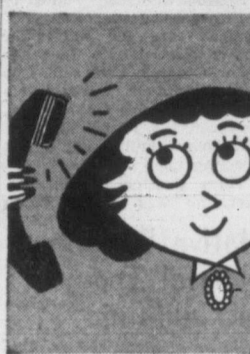

Later, one witness testified, Gallagher lay down in his room to relax, even as the victims stiff-fened and froze outside.

One of the witnesses, Sgt. Donell Adams, 27, left the stand to re-enact for the military court the manner in which Cpl. John W. Jones was thrown to his death.

Gallagher is accused of murdering three American fellow prisoners of the Korean war in a Red Chinese camp in 1951. No motive has been given for the slayings, except as testimony has pictured Gallagher as a camp bully intent on courting favor with his Chinese captors.

UNIQUE STAFF ON WAY TO WORLD JAMBOREE

Boy Scout's Hiking Stick Hiking Again

By PETE LOUDON
A Boy Scout staff is like a soldier's helmet—it has a multitude of uses other than the obvious.
In its lifetime it can be a support for a stretcher, a ridge pole for a bivouac, a vaulting pole for crossing obstacles, a bridge support, a weapon, a flag pole or just something to whittle into intricate design.
Some, when they get old and experienced, are used to add prestige to a troop.
Such a staff is the one which will be carried to the World Jamboree at Niagara-On-The-Lake this month by Ernie Quan, troop leader of the Chinese troop of Victoria.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

IT DID happen here:
The young matron took out her "learners" permit two months ago, and diligently proceeded with her driving lessons almost daily.
She worked very hard to perfect her driving technique, until finally her tutor pronounced her ready to take the test for her driving licence.
So she appeared at the motor vehicle bureau on Menzies street, and took her written exams, was tested for reaction time and eyesight, and then proceeded to the actual driving part of the test.
The young man who carried out the tests was extremely courteous and patient. But at their conclusion, he shook his head sadly.
Apparently she had done all right in the written exams, and the other tests. But as a practical driver, she just couldn't make the grade.
"Oh, dear," she murmured. "I guess I'm just not cut out to drive a car."
"There's nothing wrong with you, lady," the young man said, gallantly. "But all I can say is, whoever was teaching you sure must be a lousy driver."
There is no need to point out to my alert constituents that her tutor had been none other than friend husband. Which puts this particular young matron in the best strategic back seat driving position on record.
Can't you imagine the conversation?
Wife: Look out, dear... watch for that truck... turn left... turn right... slow down...
Husband (sharply): Who's driving this car?
Wife (sweetly): You are, dear. But remember, you're a lousy driver. The expert told me so.
Let us draw a merciful curtain over this sad scene, and think of something comparatively cheerful, such as an atom bomb explosion.

Fine of $35 or five days in jail was imposed on Robert Ormonde Cave, 2951 Henderson, when he pleaded guilty in city police court today to a careless driving charge.

countries from Aug. 18 to 28. Including the advance party which left Friday, 44 youngsters and leaders will attend. It is Canada's first world Jamboree.

Perhaps Victoria's most famous staff, it has been touring the world since 1911 and belongs to Times Scout columnist and former executive commissioner here, Freeman "Skipper" King.
Ernie, one of 44 district Scouts and leaders who will attend the rally, will carry the staff proudly as he embarks with the local contingent Sunday.
Cut from a sapling ash in England, "Skipper" King's staff was present at a world jamboree at Holland in 1937, in France in 1949 and in Austria in 1951. It was held at stiff attention during ceremonies at the United States Valley Forge jamboree and was at hand for most recent Canadian rallies.
New Scouts eye the Skipper's staff enviously. But none has ever duplicated it. On the lower tip is the brass cartridge case of an expended shell. On the top is the horn of a South African zamboc.
There is a braided thong for a shoulder sling.
Even among 10,000 boys with 10,000 staffs from 48 countries, Skipper's will be a standout and will serve as a way to turn the eyes of the world on Victoria, local Scouts feel.
The local contingent will be inspected in front of the Parliament Buildings Sunday at 1.30 p.m. by Alderman Robert Macmillan, a former Scout and Scoutmaster.
Then they will march to the inspection site from Scout Headquarters at 1034 Johnson with the Victoria Girls' Pipe Band leading the way.
Later, in Vancouver, they will board a special 17-car CPR train which will carry 500 B.C. boys direct to the jamboree tent city. Advance parties left earlier—probably to tip off early arrivals to be on hand when Skipper's world-traveling staff arrives at yet another jamboree.

CANUCK PLAYS AUSSIE

Victoria Actor Gets Part in British Film

A Victoria-born actor will appear in a small role in the British Warner film, "The Dam Busters," which is to be shown at a local theatre in a few weeks time.
He is Ronald Wilson, son of J. Harold Wilson of the well-known business firm of W. & J. Wilson.
The 25-year-old former Victorian got his inoculation of theatre blood during his school career in this city. He was a president and active member of Victoria College Players' Club and played several parts for Victoria Little Theatre and Victoria Players' Guild.
During his university career he was closely identified with the UBC Players' Club and later worked with Sydney Risk in the Everyman Theatre, Canada's first professional repertory group, and also played in a number of CBU Vancouver Theatre productions.
His most unusual and tantalizing role in London, where for the past three years he has been successfully engaged in a theatrical career, was that of the off-stage voice of hero Brian Reece in "The Seven Year Itch."
Wilson got the part in "The Dam Busters" in a roundabout way.
They told him he looked vaguely like a Canadian navigator depicted in the film, and he was tested for the part. But an English actor won the role.
Then it was decided Wilson was a dead ringer for an Australian pilot, who also figured in the story. And this time the Canadian got the job.

Friendship Visit Support Surprises, Pleases Mayor

Mayor Claude Harrison said today that he has been pleasantly astonished at individual public response to a suggested plan for Victoria-Port Angeles joint celebrations as annual events.
He said he has received many calls and heard a great deal of comment on the plan, all of it in favor. He added that he has already written to Port Angeles mayor, Ivor Smith, in that regard and meantime has an organizer in mind to head up planning.
He agreed to a suggestion by Port Angeles chamber of commerce president G. C. Leverett that civic and chamber heads should get together for roundtable discussions in that regard.
The plan calls for mass migration of citizens of each centre to the other city on specified days each year.
He is hopeful that the plan would be taken up by all churches, youth and labor groups, service clubs, lodges and sports organizations.
Various community leaders supported the suggestion in a Times poll Tuesday.

HELL-FIRE, BRIMSTONE OUT OF DATE

Theologian Sees Modern Religious Boom

BY TONY DICKSON
The old saying that a church minister is invisible from Monday to Saturday and incommunicable Sunday was proved wrong here today.
Dr. Robert B. Hannen, chief of the department of theology and ethics, Berkeley Baptist Divinity School was visible today, not at all incommunicable, and assuredly a most ethical theologian, as his title implies.
A tweedy Scot, he will talk tonight at First Baptist at 8 on "Positive Christianity."
Hell, he said, is passe these days. People don't go to church any more because they are afraid of brimstone after death; they go hoping to find a new confidence and perspective in life.
There's a religious boom on throughout Canada and the United States, he said. Such things happen when the general sense of insecurity is high.
He was critical of what he termed the "health, wealth and happiness club," formed of self-help book devotees.
This kind of thing was the shallow reflection of the religious boom. Something deeper than "Five Ways Outwit the Devil" is needed, Dr. Hannen indicated. The mathematical mind was

Half-Hundred Young Entries In Lakes Swim

Beaver, Elk Race Interest Mushrooms

Labor Day teenagers' distance swimming race at Beaver and Elk Lakes is still mushrooming and may become one of the biggest sports attractions in this area.
Registration has been reopened and a total of 47 youngsters have now applied to "get in the swim."
An organization committee of 14 adults has been formed to work out final details and a call has gone out for additional boats for training purposes.
Mayor Claude Harrison has suggested the proposed route be reversed to allow more convenience for crowds who are expected to line the beach area for the final stage of the race.

FIRST TO SWIM

The affair, which is rapidly capturing the imagination of the district, began July 31, when a Beaver Lake team, waitress, Norma Hatting, 15, completed a dare swim between Elk Lake's Happlyland and the Beaver Lake beach.
After one hour and 50 minutes in the water, she emerged with the suggestion that a contest be planned.

Beaver Lake concessionaires, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Sadler and Charlie Sadler, announced they would put up a cup and set Labor Day, Sept. 5, as the swim date.

They stipulated that contestants must be 16 or under. Immediately they were swamped with entries.

CHANGE DIRECTION

He held forth, that the plan for the race, which suggested a start at Elk Lake's Happlyland should be altered to permit the finish at that point. He reasons that there would be more chance for spectators to have a clear view of the finish at Happlyland than at the heavily-timbered Beaver Lake end of the route.

BOAT SHORTAGE

At the same time the committee has announced a shortage of boats for training purposes. The young swimmers are receiving expert coaching and guidance under Charlie Sadler each Tuesday and Thursday after 6 p.m.

Anyone who will offer use of a boat should phone 9-4131. The committee states that it will pick up and return boats used and guarantees care in their use. Boats will also be required on the day of the swim.

Complete lists of entries will be published in the Times Tuesday. The committee reminds youngsters that each contestant must have signed parental approval. The course is two miles in length. Arrangements are being made to have life-guards on hand along the route.

City, Esquimalt Accidental Death Rate Increases

A 60 per cent increase in accidental death due to cases other than motor vehicle traffic has been noted in the first half of 1955 for Victoria and Esquimalt.
A comparison with the first six months of 1954 shows four died in that period last year, the total stands at 10 up to the end of June, 1955.
The figures were included in the quarterly report of the Victoria-Esquimalt Union Board of Health which was released this morning.
Other vital statistics show a 69 per cent increase in infant mortality during the last quarter—22 as against 13 in the same period of 1954.

Chicken pox was described as the most prevalent communicable disease with 94 cases in the three-month period, April to June, with only 24 recorded in the same part of last year. Measles declined from 261 in 1954's second quarter to 53 in 1955.

Dogs Kill Fowl Worth $3,000

Saanich Farmer Loses 150 Turkeys in Raid

Two marauding dogs killed between 100 and 150 fully grown turkeys and injured about 200 more at a Saanich turkey farm early this morning.

Charlie Newman, owner of the 4167 Prospect Lake Road farm, estimated that his losses will run as high as $3,000.

The Saanich farmer also lost 53 turkeys last week to a dog. Saanich police reported they are making an extensive search for the owners of the dogs.

Police fired at and wounded the animals but they both escaped into the bush.

The dogs began killing at 4 a.m. The birds were found scattered over the property, some a quarter-mile from the farm. Some of the turkeys had their necks broken and others were badly mangled.

Mr. Newman, who owns 6,000 turkeys, was still counting the dead birds at noon today.

The farmer, with the help of police, collected over a ton of birds. They weighed between 14 and 25 pounds each and would have been ready for the market in a month.

Mr. Newman said he was awakened at 4 a.m., when the dogs were heard barking. He could not see them in the dark, and they retreated when they caught his scent.

"While I phoned the police the two dogs re-entered the turkey enclosure and began to kill the birds right and left," he said.

Constable Jack Stone, who attended with Cpl. Ed Anderson, said that one dog looked like an old English sheep dog.

"I shot at him as he was making a get-away," he said. "He ran right in front of my car."

Mr. Newman was depressed about his losses.

"We started this farm from scratch," he said. "And this year we hoped to get out of the red."

He said the birds were a total loss and the injured ones would probably be killed by the healthy turkeys. Turkeys are cannibalistic by nature and will kill a wounded bird.

Mr. Newman said the new Saanich dog by-law should have been framed to protect all residents of Saanich.

DOG BY-LAW

The by-law passed two weeks ago states that all dogs must be within call of their owners during the day and night. But the regulations only apply to owners of dogs living south of Royal Oak. It was designed to control dogs who damage ornamental gardens.

The by-law does not give the right to the poundkeeper to pick up a stray dog during the day in the rural district of the municipality.

REPORT COMING

Mr. Newman said dogs can attack poultry or sheep anytime during the day or night. He said many killer dogs were from urban districts.

Meanwhile, G. L. Landon, director of agricultural development and extension, said he will make a report to the deputy minister of agriculture.

He added Saanich will face a claim for the damage to the turkeys.

"Dogs can become a serious problem when their owners don't look after them," he said. "Some dogs will break through fences and there is little the farmer can do to protect his livestock."

City Teacher Accepts Post In Germany

A 20-year-old Victoria teacher left this city Tuesday night for the health resort of Wiesbaden, Germany, where she will teach conversational English.
Miss Claire Hunt, grade three teacher at Quadra School this year, applied for the position through the Canadian government.

She will stop off in Vancouver to visit her parents before flying to New York and there she will board the "Andrea Doria" for Italy.

A graduate of Vancouver Normal School, Miss Hunt also taught for one year at Campbell River.

Last winter she took a night school course in conversational German at Victoria College, where her teacher Dr. Gordon Tracy informed her of the opening.

Miss Hunt plans to stay at least one year and will teach at "Dilthe-Schule," a junior high school in Wiesbaden.

SHOPPING GUIDE

For That Finishing Touch,
Add Ruffled Window Frills

By PENNY SAVER

What to do with the odd-shaped kitchen window! Regular curtains look out of place, while left bare, they are a distinct drawback to the overall beauty of the room. No, you don't have to struggle with fittings and measuring for these misfits, just try the elasticized frill curtains on sale in town. They don't cover the window, they outline it with an attractive frill that's just what's needed. They're elasticized lengths of organdy, with a gay cotton print panel down the centre, where the elastic is concealed. You can buy a length in a box that will stretch, with still enough fullness to ruffle, from seven to 15 feet.

You put them up in a jiffy, too. Just attach the ends of the ruffles to the bottom corners of the window frame. Pick out the centre of the length, and attach it to the centre of the top of the window frame. From there, you attach the centre points of the rest of the elastic to the top corners of the frame. And there it is! The window is as bright and gay as can be. No rods used here. The few hooks and screws necessary to put the frill on your windows are all contained in the box. Choose a color to match your room, and save yourself the trouble of hanging curtains.

They have other uses, too. Use them as an outline for the rather severe Venetian blinds, or as an eye-catching outline for the doorway in the nursery. As a trim on bedspreads, headboards and dressing tables, it's also perfect. The box is just $1.89.

Mr. and Mrs. MacLeod Honeymoon
At Banff En Route to Edmonton

Edmonton will be the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Allan William MacLeod, who were married last evening in Central Baptist Church.

Rev. Percy Willis officiated and the church was decorated with gladioli, lilies and carnations. The bride is the former Miss Evelyn Florence Anne Hinde.

Miss Emma Gower, organist, played traditional wedding music, and accompanied soloist, Miss Esther Baynton, who sang "Through the Years."

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Hinde, 423 Parry Street, chose a white brocade satin wedding gown inset with a pearl trim. The skirt was floor-length, cascading in graceful folds from a fitted bodice featuring a scooped neckline. The sleeves tapered into lily points at the wrists.

A headress of waxed orange blossoms held her misty nylon net veil, and she carried a bridal bouquet of red roses, white carnations and baby's breath.

Mrs. Edward Hinde was matron of honor and only attendant for her sister-in-law. She wore a floor-length gown of aqua nylon, fashioned with a strapless bodice and topped with a short-sleeved bolero. Her bou-quet was of yellow-tinted carnations.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. William MacLeod, Edmonton, asked Ernest McNeilly to be best man, and David Martin and Robert Copeman to be the ushers.

At the reception which followed at the home of the bride's parents, Miss Ann Firth was soloist. A three-tier wedding cake in white with yellow roses and silver leaves centred the bride's table, which was covered with a hand-crocheted cloth. White candles in silver holders flanked the cake. Carnations and gladioli were seen in the floral decorations of the house. Alfred H. Richards proposed the toast to the bride's happiness.

The newlyweds will spend a time at Banff en route to their home in Edmonton at 11844 122nd Street. For traveling, the bride donned a navy sheer nylon dress topped with a navy duster. She wore pink accessories and a white gardenia corsage.

Doll Collector Makes Authentic
Costumes Herself; True to Life

By DINAH KERR

No matter where you turn, Davy Crockett is a-standin' by, coonskin cap at a devilish tilt and gun in hand.

And, in at least one case he is a-standin' by such notables as Madame Pompadour, Queen Elizabeth II, Marie Antoinette, Nero and Henry VIII. Even Carmen Miranda rolls her eyes at that crazy coonskin.

"History was never like this, but in a doll collection, anything goes," says Mrs. Winnie Rathbone, 3235 Seaton Road.

Her collection of 75 dolls will be displayed for the first time at the Victoria Gladiolus Festival, at the Crystal Garden, Friday and Saturday. One will be offered as a door prize.

Clad in authentic costume, the dolls bring fable and history alive. In one corner of Mrs. Rathbone's "doll house" are nursery favorites Little Boy Blue, Red Riding Hood and the bad wolf, Jack and Jill, and Tinker Bell. In another are the elegant Empress Eugenie, Elizabeth I, Martha and George Washington and Jane Grey.

Mrs. Rathbone's pride is Elizabeth Woodville, Grey (1450). "I guess it's because her costume is so magnificent," she confesses. The splendor of her red velvet and "ermine" seems to have caught the roving eye of Henry VIII, too. And why else would Nero be plucking nervously at his fiddle?

Always interested in history, Mrs. Rathbone decided to give rein to her talent for design

Joining the procession of kings and queens in the Rathbone doll collection is the indomitable Davy Crockett. Intrigued by the Crockett craze, Mrs. Rathbone quickly fashioned a coonskin cap and tanned leather outfit. Davy has his gun ready—but there are no bears among the 75 dolls.

three years ago. Soon she was delving into all types of history and period books, for information on the dress of kings and queens.

Satisfied with 30 monarchs who figured in English and French history from 1460 to the present day, Mrs. Rathbone turned her hand to other real and fictitious characters.

Perhaps not famous but as true to life as Queen Victoria is the dainty figure depicting Mr. Rathbone's grandmother in her wedding dress. The doll wears a modish cocoa-colored ensemble, fashioned of material from the actual wedding dress, which is more than 100 years old.

Among other interesting models is a demure Indian maiden whose beaded costume was made by Indians in a TB hospital at Prince Rupert. "I wrote to my sister and she arranged to have the outfit made," says the resourceful designer.

Victoria Chapter, No. 25, Women of Moose, in K of P Hall, 723 Cormorant Street, Thursday at 7.30 p.m. Officers, escorts and committee chairmen to wear formal. Chapter night program convened by Mooseheart Alumni chairman, Mrs. D. Charles.

FROM WOOL CENTRE

Scottish Visitor Still Buys Cashmere Coat in This City

By ELIZABETH FORBES

An attractive young woman, who knows cashmere wools in their every phase and who comes from a centre that produces the finest cashmere wool sweaters, and other sports attire, confesses that she has bought a white cashmere shortie coat in Victoria.

Why? Because she left her favorite summer cashmere wool coat at home in Dumfries, Scotland.

"It would seem like buying coats for Newcastle, or something of that sort," says Miss Cynthia McGeorge, with a quick shrug of her shoulders, "but I simply must have a summer coat."

Then, she looks at you with a twinkle of mischief in her eyes. "After all," she says, "it is a very good coat I have bought . . . it was loomed in Scotland."

Miss McGeorge is in Canada on a business trip . . . her fifth . . . for her father's firm of J. and A. McGeorge, makers of men's fine woolen sports attire.

"It's a good-will tour, really," she explains. "I do not do any selling. That is done through our Montreal agents."

Her first visit to Victoria was made in 1950. She stayed four months that time and in the course of her visit became an ardent lacrosse fan and as rabid a booster for the Shamrocks as any Victorian. Each year since, she has arranged her cross-country tour so that she has some holiday time in this city.

Regarding wools and wool sportswear—especially in cashmere lines for men—Miss McGeorge tells you modestly, she still has a lot to learn, even if she has been brought up in the business. "Knowledge of these fine wools is increasing every day," she explains.

The McGeorge plant in Dumfries has three branches and employs between five and six hundred staff.

"Dumfries is not the largest woolen centre. It is Hawick," the young visitor says, "but of course, we think Dumfries is the best."

Dumfries is the home of Miss McGeorge, a guest at present at the Cathay Apartment Hotel.

University Women Meet in Triennial; Dr. Law to Retire

EDMONTON (CP)—A blonde and vivacious Toronto dentist, Dr. Martha Law, will be retiring as president of the Canadian Federation of University Women when the group holds its triennial conference here Aug. 16-20.

During her three-year term membership of the federation increased by 1,000 to a total of 8,000 in 80 clubs across Canada. About 300 Canadian delegates to the convention here will be joined by guests from the American association of university women.

For discussion groups during the meeting the chosen theme is "constants and variables of our changing society." Eight groups will discuss separate aspects.

Mrs. M. T. Bancroft of Silbury, Que., will lead one group discussing work and leisure in a mechanized society. Mrs. Sherwood Lett, wife of the new Chief Justice of British Columbia, will lead another group on the welfare aspects of democratic society. School board chairman Mrs. A. W. F. McQueen of Niagara Falls, Ont., has charge of a group discussing education for democracy.

Speakers this year include Dr. E. P. Scarlett of Calgary, chancellor of the University of Alberta, where sessions will be held; Mrs. O. L. Caldwell of Saskatoon, one of 10 club delegates to the United Nations in 1953, and Miss Marion Royce, head of the women's bureau of the department of labor in Ottawa.

Auxiliary Plans A Flower Show

GANGES—Plans are nearing completion for a gladioli show on August 25 sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary to Ganges United Church. The show will be held from 2 to 9 p.m. in the church basement and will feature displays by Vancouver Island growers. Mrs. Le Fevre will give a talk on flower arrangement and tea will be served by members of the auxiliary. There will be nine classes for gladioli from one spike to 12, also a class for arrangements by men only, an arrangement of gladioli and arrangement for any summer flowers.

Engagement Foretells September Wedding

Dr. and Mrs. E. L. McNiven are this week announcing the engagement of their eldest daughter, Dorothy Grace, to Mr. John Noble Long, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Long of Brantford, Ont. The wedding will take place on Sept. 12 at 8 p.m. in First United Church

On arrival, the guest of honor received a pink carnation corsage, and her mother, Mrs. J. M. Fenwick, raspberry-ice blooms. Count Your Calories In Order to Slenderize

This is a summer note to men, who read this column or to their wives who are interested in their health and good looks, too!

If you have many extra pounds and do not lose them you are flying in the face of the latest scientific information concerning the health hazards which overweight brings you. Not only is it a truly serious problem so far as health is concerned, but for the sake of comfort and enjoyment of daily living you should slim down.

Your ideal weight for your height at the age of 30 should be your goal all through life. If you adhere to this policy you will have a much greater chance which harass so many folks of missing the chronic diseases from middle age on. You will also have more immunity from the killers.

Select calories chock full of the essentials for best health. There will be no room for the gravy, mashed potatoes, French fries and pie and beer and so forth on a reducing diet. If you insist on taking these along with you on your limited calorie intake either you will not lose weight or you will lose in health. There simply are not enough allowable calories when reducing to provide the essentials for health and also these luscious items.

Build your diet about poached eggs, lean meats and fish and fowl, fresh vegetables and fruits, cereals, skim milk and citrus fruit juices. You can have very satisfying meals if you will not eat fried foods, will leave off cream sauces and gravies and in-between snacks. Go light on butter or margarine, substitute fresh fruit for desserts, and eat smaller amounts of all foods.

Men are more interested in reducing today than ever before because they realize that it is serious business.

If you missed my 10-cent Tubby Hubby Diet Booklet which brings you a loss of 7 to 12 pounds in 12 days time, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Steady Work Is Worth Moving For

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, Ph.D.

Financial security is worth many sacrifices, especially when one has a family to think of.

(Q) "My husband and I have been married for eight years and have two children, a girl six and a boy two. During the years of our marriage my husband has not had steady employment, through no fault of his. Recently he has been offered a job in another state. Should we sell our furniture and leave the state for this other job? It has more opportunities for advancement than the work he is doing now. Come fall and winter he will be out of work again, as his work depends on the weather. What would you advise?"

(A) I would certainly advise that your husband accept the offer if it promises steady employment and the opportunity to advance. A man with a family cannot hope to support them very well if his work lasts only half the year.

Because your children are still young the move will not be so difficult for them as it would be if they were teen-agers. They can grow up in the new community and feel that it is "home" to them. Furthermore, as they grow older their needs and wants will be greater. Then it would be a real hardship for them to have to get along on what their father could earn in part of a year's work.

As for selling your furniture, I see no reason for that. You would get very little for it—second-hand furniture rarely brings much—and you would then have to buy new furniture for your new home. That would be much more expensive than having the furniture shipped to the place where your husband's new job would be.

It might be wise to let him go ahead of you and pick out a home, then send for you and the children. That way you could have your furniture moved straight to the new home and would not have the expense of putting it in storage until you found a place.

Swimmers Bore Him—So He'll Hike 355 Miles

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto bookbinder who says he has never ridden in a taxi or street-car in his life and is a little tired of the publicity given to marathon swims, plans to walk non-stop 355 miles from here to Montreal.

Robert Mende, 25, who came to Canada three years ago from Czechoslovakia, said today he plans to start within the next two weeks—as soon as he rounds up volunteers to act as escorts and timekeepers.

He figures the trip will take four days and nights, with food handed to him along the route.

Mende said that when he was 16, he won an international walking contest from Prague to Bratislava—some 250 miles. He said he walked about 300 miles when he escaped from a Communist prison camp in Prague in 1949 and headed for the German border.

NEW YORK (UP) — "E basta così!"

With those words, a little Italian cobbler from the Bronx, Gino Prato, rang down the curtain and retired $32,000 richer today.

They mean: "That's enough." Prato, making his fourth appearance on CBS-TV's "The $64,000 Question," had captured the fancy of much of the nation by wading through a series of questions in the category, "Opera." The gentle, graying, 55-year-old shoemaker had pyramided his winnings to $32,000 by doing so. Tuesday night, Prato had the opportunity of doubling his stake by tackling another question. He decided to bow out.

"My father in Italy sent me a wire," Prato explained. "It said: 'Fermati dove ti trovi. E basta così.' That means: 'Stop wherever you are. That's enough.'"

"Because I take my daddy's advice when I was a small kid, I take it now."

Prato was presented with his check for $32,000.

"I will also buy my father a good hearing aid," said the smiling Prato after the broadcast. "He is stone deaf."

Prato said he and his wife, Caroline, would take off for Italy by air sometime in early September. His daughter, Lorraine, will be married to a former G.I. Eugene Joannides, on Aug. 27 in New York and the young couple plans to accompany Prato to Italy.

Prato will not have to use any of his winnings for his air fare — a New York travel agency has agreed to foot the bill.

Former Organist At Cathedral Back for Visit

Ernest Willoughby
Now at Bryn Mawr

Director of the music department at Bryn Mawr, famous girls' college near Philadelphia, Ernest Willoughby is revisiting city churches after eight years' absence.

Mr. Willoughby taught at Bryn Mawr for 20 years before bringing his wife to this city in 1943. He was organist and choirmaster at Christ Church Cathedral until 1945, but returned to the girls' college because "I just couldn't see any future here."

He now heads a 30-piece orchestra and 80-member chorus, instructs many of the 650 students in musical courses and still has time to hold positions of organist and choirmaster at the Church of the Redeemer.

POLICE PROBE

The four had been mentioned earlier by T. G. Norris, counsel for Mulligan.

TRUSTS CHIEF

Earlier magistrate Orr declared that he had always had "the fullest confidence" in Mulligan and "I still have."

He said Mulligan had been "much concerned" about his claim of the conspiracy.

"But to tell you the truth, we did not pay a great deal of attention to it," he said the police commission adopted a "wait and see" attitude.

Magistrate Orr had testified Monday he had been informed of Det.-Sgt. Cuthbert's story of splitting payoffs with Mulligan for a six-week period in 1949.

He also told of an interview with Det.-Sgt. Robert Leatherdale who told him he had been "propositioned" by Mulligan to "ease up" on certain city bootleggers.

Both officers have testified Magistrate Orr said he had investigated "many sources" and had in his capacity as magistrate many opportunities to do so but had found "no facts to substantiate" any of the charges.

But he said he knew that many officers "hated the chief," "I knew" the president and the secretary of the police union hated him, he said.

If there had been anything much in the allegations against the chief, said the magistrate, "there were many who would have come forward."

The magistrate described Mulligan as a "very strict" disciplinarian and that many officers had been demoted by him in disciplinary action.

"On one occasion he gave us, the police commission, his written resignation. He said we didn't back him up enough in discipline." The commission had, however, calmed the chief down and he had withdrawn the resignation.

The magistrate earlier started the courtroom—packed since the hearings started—by disclosing the existence of a "mystery" letter containing widespread charges against several police officers.

HOLDS MYSTERY LETTER

Reginald H. Tupper, head of the commission, intervened. He said he now had the letter "containing many allegations but I don't want its contents spread abroad."

"It's not anonymous, but I have reason to believe the signature is not a true one," said commissioner Tupper.

He said the letter would be introduced as evidence in the hearing "in due course."

WRANGLE DEVELOPS

Harry Spring, representing the police union, challenged the magistrate's statement that the union sought control of the police force. "I said it before and I say it now. The union wanted to gain control of the police force."

"I don't think that is fair. . . . That is a question of opinion," interrupted Mr. Spring.

"That is my opinion . . . something has to be done to take away the craft feature of this union," replied the magistrate sternly.

G. L. Murray, counsel for Vancouver News Distributors, distributors of Flash, referred Magistrate Orr to the "Parsloe report," written by former RCMP sergeant Terry Parsloe, who was assigned by the police commission in 1950 secretly to investigate the force.

Mr. Murray charged the investigator had received all his information from "underworld characters."

"Do you feel that using the report was like using the underworld to clear the police chief of serious allegations made by a reputable police officer?" he asked.

"I certainly do not," returned the magistrate. "It was a negative report and it was assuring. I accepted it."

Two Veteran Fliers Aboard Crashed Plane

OTTAWA (CP)—Two veteran air force men were aboard a civilian plane which crashed near Churchill, Man., Tuesday.

Spartan Air Service Ltd., today identified them as L. W. Len Cook, 32, of Ottawa and Richard Pattison, 34, of Toronto.

Cook, a wartime bomber pilot with the Royal Air Force, served in the RCAF following the war.

Pattison won the Distinguished Flying Cross and bar with the RCAF during the war. Cook was piloting the plane when it crashed.

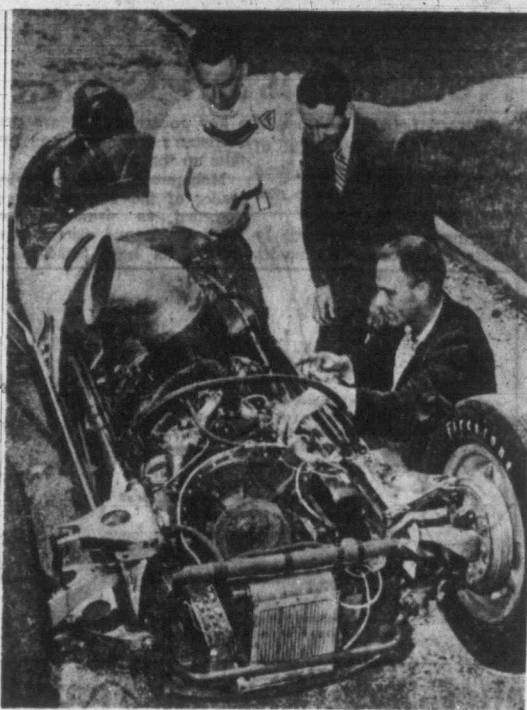

Parts of the Mosquito plane were spotted by search planes late Tuesday night after search operations had been delayed during the day by low ceilings. The plane was on its way back from Pelly Lake in the Northwest Territories, 550 miles northwest of Churchill, where bad weather had prevented it from landing.

It left Churchill, 610 miles north of Winnipeg, Monday and was last heard from on the return trip 1 a.m. Tuesday when the pilot said he was in sight of the tower lights at the airport here.

It could not be determined whether there were any survivors but attempts are being made to get a ground party to the scene.

The car has one of the few gas-turbine automobile engines in the world and when traveling it emits a whine as loud as a jet engine. The maker of the turbine does not expect it will replace the conventional engine.

LONDON (CP)—Group Capt. James B. Harvey, 43, of Winnipeg, for three years chief staff officer at Canadian joint staff, London, will sail for Canada Thursday to take over the post of senior air staff officer at RCAF training command headquarters, Trenton, Ont.

He will be succeeded here by Group Capt. M. P. Martyn, 42, of Calgary, now commanding officer of the RCAF station at Penhold, Alta.

Swede Warship Fires On Mysterious Sub

STOCKHOLM (UP)—Sweden's marine department reported today a Swedish torpedo boat chased an unidentified submarine violating Swedish territorial waters Tuesday and dropped depth charges in an attempt to force it to surface.

The torpedo boat spotted the unidentified sub off the island of Gotland when the underwater craft suddenly raised periscope about 50 yards from the patrol boat.

The torpedo boat, carrying a party of movie actors shooting a film called "Blue Sea," rushed toward the periscope, but the sub hastily retreated beneath the sea.

Authorities said the torpedo boat dashed at full speed back to port, picked up depth charges and hurried back to the area where the sub was sighted.

The patrol boat, named Polaris, surged back and forth over the expanse of sea where it was believed the sub lurked and dropped the explosives at various depths. It produced no hits, however.

Swedish fighter planes later joined the search, but no trace of the submarine was found.

The unidentified craft was sighted in the forbidden waters outside Faaroesund on Gotland where vital Swedish military installations are located.

The sub was the fifth unidentified underwater boat to be sighted in Sweden's territorial waters since last June.

Proficiency Cards For Film Experts

The Victoria and District Film Council and the public library have instituted a new system of issuing proficiency cards to 16MM movie projector operators in the area, it was announced today.

Object of the cards is to identify the operator and his ability when projecting where not known. The move is also designed to protect film library equipment, eliminating inexperienced operators.

It is hoped the card system may be recognized in other areas to lead to quick identification. The cards will be issued seasonally.

Langford Plans Discussion on Highway Zoning

A meeting will be held at Langford Community Hall tonight to discuss possible zoning of a three-quarter mile strip on each side of this new Island Highway outlet between Thetis Lake and Millstream Road.

Possibility of zoning the area was raised by some residents, who asked for protective regulations similar to those in force in View Royal.

J. H. Doughty-Davies, regional planning director for the municipal affairs department will attend the meeting. Chairman will be J. S. Williams.

Government officials today denied they have taken a "dictatorial" stand on the zoning question, as charged by R. B. H. Sewell, one of the chief opponents of zoning in Langford area.

No part of Langford proper would be involved in the proposal. The area around Langford Lake also is not involved they said.

Regulations in effect in View Royal call for zoning, to establish commercial areas for shopping centres; minimum lot size requirements, to ensure lots are large enough for efficient septic tank operation, and minimum standards of home-building.

Some Langford residents term the proposal "the thin edge of the wedge" and a move afoot to gain incorporation as a village.

Swim Suit Transparency Brings Suit Against Shop

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—Claudia Hamilton says she went swimming in a new bathing suit at a South Carolina beach and when she emerged she suffered the following:

Mortification and humiliation, shock, permanent injury to her nerves and psychic injury to her personality.

The bathing suit, from the waist down, became transparent, she claims in her suit for $20,000 against Glamor Shops, Inc., of New York. She said she purchased the garment in the firm's Dillon county shop.

Crowds spotted her rising from the sea in a semi-nude state, she claims, and a friend rushed to knock her back into the water to cover her from gazing males.

She said she was forced to walk the gauntlet up the strand encased in a towel "for protection from the leers of the public."

U.S. Pilots Train in B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Okanagan Helicopters Ltd., of Vancouver, has been given a contract to train helicopter pilots from the United States, France and Indonesia, it was announced here Tuesday.

The firm will provide advanced and specialized courses to pilots of the U.S. Army transport command, the French Air Force and the Indonesian Air Force.

The first group of U.S. pilots and an Indonesian air force officer already are in training at Penticton, B.C., Okanagan helicopters' main training base. Some instruction may be given later at the firm's main base at Vancouver International airport.

The initial contingent of French pilots is expected at the interior City next week.

An Okanagan Helicopters spokesman said training arrangements made at Penticton last year when several classes of RCAF pilots were given special courses will be supplemented for the international program.

The program will accept helicopter operations in mountainous territory and cargo-handling techniques.

Directing the program is Carl Agar, vice-president of operations for Okanagan Helicopters. Chief instructor is Don Poole, one of the firm's veteran pilots.

VANCOUVER (CP)—City council here will ask the provincial government whether it has instructed Vancouver to change its method of assessment. Ald. Sept. 12 Lillooet Vote Date 'Money Talks' By-Election Leaves Month for Campaign

The Lillooet by-election, forced by Liberal J. Gordon Gibson's dramatic resignation from the B.C. Legislature following his "money talks" charges on the government's forest management policies has been set for Sept. 12.

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black announced the polling date this morning, giving B.C. politicians the kick-off for a month of campaigning in what is certain to be one of the hardest fought by-elections in recent B.C. history.

Chief issue in the by-election will be government handling of forest resources, particularly forest management licences, which Mr. Gibson has attacked repeatedly as "a multi-million dollar give-away."

At the time of his resignation, five months ago today on March 10, Mr. Gibson announced he was resigning to force a test of public opinion on forest management.

The three major political parties in B.C., Social Credit, Liberal, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation—are expected to throw their full weight into the by-election battle.

The Secreds see the Lillooet contest as an opportunity for their party to avenge the Victoria by-election in November, 1953, when Liberal George Gregory nosed out former Secord finance minister Einar Gunderson.

Social Crediters named their candidate Saturday. He is Don Robinson, an engineer on the government-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

CCF'ers were the first in the field. They named a Lillooet school teacher, Jack H. Thomas, to carry the party banner.

Liberals will hold a nominating convention "within the next few days," and Mr. Gibson is expected to be uncontested as party candidate.

Outcome of the September 12 vote will be decided on the straight "X" ballot. The complicated alternative ballot system has been scrapped.

Nominations for the by-election will close September 2. Advance polls will be open September 8, 9 and 10.

Politicians already are trading punches, warming up for the campaign. Premier Bennett has labelled Mr. Gibson a "millionaire playboy yachtsman" and Secord candidate "two-bit Robinson, a worker of Lillooet."

He said he labelled the men in this fashion because "Gordon Gibson said something about running against a two-bit Social Credit candidate."

Liberal Leader Arthur Laing today dispatched a telegram to the premier, asking for an apology.

Mr. Gibson said the premier had "tried to become a millionaire and failed. I made it," he said.

He said his only reference to the Secord's Lillooet candidate had been some months ago, when it was rumored Einar Gunderson would contest the seat.

"I said at that time 'bring on Gunderson,' because I wanted to run against the best candidate they had, and not a second-rater."

There are about 5,500 registered voters in Lillooet riding. In the 1953 general election, Mr. Gibson won out only after the third count of ballots. On first count, the standings were: Frank Olafson, Social Credit, 1,065; Gordon Dowling, CCF, 1,372; Gordon Gibson, Liberal, 1,103 and Herbert Ashby, Progressive-Conservative, 452.

On second count, with Ashby's votes distributed, the standings were Olafson, 1,138; Dowling, 1,420, and Gibson, 1,325.

On the final count, Gibson beat out the CCF candidate with 1,830 votes, compared with Dowling's 1,694.

New York Battens Down For Big Blow

Hurricane 'Connie' Threat Thursday

NEW YORK (BUP)—

This metropolis, one of the safest places to be in a storm, battened down its hatches today in anticipation of a visit from hurricane, Connie, possibly Thursday.

Swank apartment houses on Fifth and Park Avenues stripped their marquees of awnings, while on Broadway police kept a weather eye out for loosely hung neon signs.

The city, with its bastions of concrete and steel, is the safest place of refuge in a storm, according to the weather man, who isn't sure whether Connie will hit the New York area or not. But out on Long Island and along the Jersey and Connecticut coasts, residents with years of hurricane experience were taking no chances.

RESORTS CLOSED

All of Nassau County's popular resorts, including gigantic Jones Beach, have been closed to bathers since Tuesday.

The most intense pre-hurricane activity centred around bases of the air force, army, navy, National Guard and military air transport in a great crescent from Lakehurst, N.J., to Westhampton Beach, N.Y. Operating under hurricane condition 2, a Pentagon 24-hour storm warning, the bases shifted their planes to heaven fields as far away as Texas and Ohio.

At noon, EDT, the howling tropical tempest, following a course carved out by the disastrous Hazel of 1954, hovered 225 miles southeast of Myrtle Beach, S.C.

Quinn, Rivette Will Both Try Strait Tonight

Quinn at 7.30;
Rivette at 8

The starting gun will boom this evening for two of the five challengers of Juan de Fuca who plan cross-strait attempts this week.

At 7.30 p.m., Bob Quinn, 23, Toronto, will start from Clover Point.

At 8 p.m., Douglas Rivette, 44, Vancouver, will go from Gonzales Point.

Both will use local fishermen as navigators. Johnny Veness for Quinn, Alf Webb for Rivette.

Early Thursday was first set as departure time for Quinn, but after a 10-mile swim from Macaulay Point to Race Rocks Tuesday night, Quinn and coach Steve Mellors decided on the earlier time.

Quinn was in the water again for another training dip at 6.30 this morning, and Mellors said his swimmer would make a third, brief plunge this afternoon to keep in trim.

COACH CONFIDENT

The coach said after watching Quinn Tuesday and noting his condition after the 10 miles in extremely cold water, he was sure of the swimmer's ability to make the long haul to Ediz Hook.

"My mind is at ease now," he said.

Two more tries are scheduled for Friday, Janice White's second at 8.30 p.m. and Bill Muir's third at 9 p.m. Miss White plans to leave from Gonzales Point, but Muir's handlers have not disclosed course or starting point.

Finally Victorian Bob Bowden, also 23, is making preparations for either a Saturday or Sunday evening start, his second, probably from Gonzales.

'Runaway' Reactor Dangerous as A-Bomb

Industrial Disaster Possible Warns Scientist Edward Teller

GENEVA (UP)—The California scientist who unlocked the secret of the hydrogen bomb warned the world today of a new danger—the dread "runaway" nuclear reactor that could be as dangerous as the atom bomb itself.

The warning was delivered in a paper from Edward Teller of the University of California, known as the "father of the hydrogen bomb," and was echoed in papers by British and Soviet scientists at the atom-for-peace conference here.

He warned that runaway nuclear furnaces may force the evacuation of entire cities, poison entire watersheds and turn stretches of land into forbidden areas for years. It could be a split second disaster but an industrial disaster unknown before to the world.

The scientists said nuclear fission must be made as safe as gas or electricity for the era of atomic power is near at hand. They told of an unceasing search for devices to make nuclear fission safe in the laboratories of two continents.

The paper said that "with all the inherent safeguards that can be put into a reactor, there is still no fool-proof system... there are unfortunately certain dangerous characteristics... (and) this public hazard has been one of our main concerns."

Rookie Policemen Work Undercover Nab 28 Traffickers

(CP and BUP Dispatches)

VANCOUVER—Police said today they believe the main source of supply for Canada's major illegal narcotics market was cut off Tuesday with the arrest of 28 suspected drug traffickers. Seven others still are sought.

Undercover work by two Vancouver city police force "rookies" was credited with smashing the drug ring, reported to be headed by Montrealers who moved into the Vancouver narcotics market after a period of gang warfare with rival syndicates.

Vancouver constables today were ordered to keep a close watch on drug stores as a protection against desperate dope addicts anxious to get narcotics.

There are 2,000 known addicts in Vancouver. Canada's total addict population is estimated at 3,200.

Fifteen of the 25 men and three women rounded up in Tuesday's joint raids by RCMP and Vancouver police, appeared in police court today. Bail totaling $140,000 was set and Aug. 17 and 18 set for their trials.

Seven of those appearing today were charged with conspiracy to traffic in drugs. They included five men already in Oakalla prison waiting trial on charges they attempted to murder a drug addict, Thomas Kinna, by beating him with an iron bar.

Thirteen cars, each carrying an RCMP and city police officer, combed the city for eight hours Tuesday to conduct the operation.

Bob Devente, 27, who worked for the Dutch underground during the Second World War, and Ken Scherling, 25-year-old university graduate, were the key figures in the sweep. The rookie undercover men joined the Vancouver force five months ago and soon moved into the underworld to gather evidence against peddlars.

Devente and Scherling waited in the RCMP office here Tuesday and identified each of the suspects brought in.

Four city detectives shadowed the rookies in their dangerous undercover assignment and in turn the detectives were followed at all times by other policemen.

Acting chief constable Alan H. Rossiter said today he will "personally commend" the two rookie constables.

Major Blow at Distributors

"Without a question," Rossiter added, "this is a major blow at drug distribution. Naturally, it is considered likely that some people will consider attempting to fill the source of supply, but we are ready for them."

Det. Sgt. Archie Plummer, city police force liaison officer with the RCMP, and Sgt. Harold Price of the RCMP directed the raids.

Police chief Walter Mulligan who is on leave of absence pending the outcome of the Tupper royal commission hearing into charges of laxity and corruption in his department, was identified by Vancouver police spokesmen as the man who masterminded the undercover operations.

For nearly a year police here have spoken of underworld battles to control the drug racket.

The "gang war" was touched off last September by the murder of Danny Brent.

In November, William Semerick was shot down by two assailants whom he refused to name. Eddie Sherban and Joe Marcoux were acquitted of attempted murder charges and Semerick now is serving a 10-year term for drug trafficking.

In February there was an attempt on the life of Jacob Leonard, named in court as the leader of a drug faction. Leonard survived after his car was blown up by an explosive wired to the ignition.

Tuesday's raids were the biggest here since 1953 when undercover RCMP constable Gerald Howe laid charges of selling narcotics against 31 persons. In 1949, the RCMP broke the Carmen Chiovitti and Dan Gasperini gang with 10 arrests in Toronto and Vancouver.

Probably the most celebrated narcotics conspiracy case was against the Mallock brothers and William Carter in 1950.

Executive of the local had recommended rejection of the award and had called for application for a strike ballot.

Union secretary John Brown said the rejection and automatic call for a strike vote will force nine major milk distributors to renew negotiations.

In Victoria, drivers and inside dairy workers last week, voted to strike if a settlement was not reached in Vancouver. A conciliation award to Victoria union members granted them wage and working parity with Vancouver. Union officials said here today that about a week or 10 days will elapse before a strike vote is taken in the mainland city and a further 48-hour waiting period will be necessary before strike action can be taken.

Meanwhile, employers, representing nine mainland and three Victoria dairies, have the opportunity to re-open negotiations for peaceful settlement of the dispute.

Tupper Orders Probe Halted Until Tuesday

Magistrate Orr Reveals Mulligan Reported Conspiracy Among Officers

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Tupper Royal Commission investigating Vancouver police force will resume public hearings next Tuesday after a week's adjournment ordered by commissioner Reginald H. Tupper.

The commission adjourned Tuesday after:

1. Magistrate Oscar Orr testified chief constable Walter Mulligan reported to the police commission three years ago he had discovered a conspiracy among some officers to remove him from his job.
2. Royal commissioner Tupper announced he had a mystery better containing widespread charges against police officers.
Magistrate Orr, member of the police board since 1948, was continuing his testimony before the royal commission appointed to investigate charges of corruption in Vancouver's 750-man police force.

The veteran magistrate said under questioning that Chief Mulligan "reported to us in writing he had discovered a conspiracy against him... He did not name any names."

The disclosure was made after he was questioned by Neil Fleishman, counsel for the Toronto weekly Flash and Ray Munro, its western representative. A series of articles in Flash on alleged police corruption here preceded the appointment of the commission.

Mr. Fleishman asked Magistrate Orr whether he knew if Det. Sgt. Archie Plummer, Det. Sgt. Len Cuthbert, former detective Jack Whelan and the late Supt. Harry Whelan were involved in a conspiracy.

The four had been mentioned

'Money Talks' By-Election Leaves Month for Campaign

The Lillooet by-election, forced by Liberal J. Gordon Gibson's dramatic resignation from the B.C. Legislature following his "money talks" charges on the government's forest management policies has been set for Sept. 12.

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black announced the polling date this morning, giving B.C.'s politicians the kick-off for a month of campaigning in what is certain to be one of the hardest fought by-election tests in recent B.C. history.

Chief issue in the by-election will be government handling of forest resources, particularly forest management licences, which Mr. Gibson has attacked repeatedly as "a multi-million dollar give-away."

At the time of his resignation, five months ago today on March 10, Mr. Gibson announced he was resigning to force a test of public opinion on forest management.

The three major political parties in B.C., Social Credit, Liberal, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation—are expected to throw their full weight into the by-election battle.

The Socials see the Lillooet contest as an opportunity for their party to avenge the Victoria by-election in November, 1953, when Liberal George Greig, now ousted former Social finance minister Einar Gundersen, was elected.

Social Crediters named their candidate Saturday. He is Don Robinson, an engineer on the government-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

CCF'ers were the first in the field. They named a Lillooet school teacher, Jack H. Thomas, to carry the party banner.

LIBERALS TO MEET
Liberals will hold a nominating convention "within the next few days," and Mr. Gibson is expected to be uncontested as party candidate.
